

CONTENTS

	Page
CHAPTER LXXXII
He persuades Cadwallader to assume the Character of a Magician, in which he acquires a great share of Reputation, by his Responses to three Females of Distinction, who severally consult the Researches of his Art . . . . .	1
CHAPTER LXXXIII
Peregrine and his friend Cadwallader proceed in the exercise of the Mystery of Fortune-telling, in the course of which they achieve various Adventures . . . . .	9
CHAPTER LXXXIV
The Conjurer and his Associate execute a Plan of Vengeance against certain Infidels who despise their Art ; and Peregrine achieves an Adventure with a young Nobleman . . . . .	23
CHAPTER LXXXV
Peregrine is celebrated as a Wit and Patron, and proceeds to entertain himself at the Expence of whom it did concern . . . . .	32
CHAPTER LXXXVI
Peregrine receives a Letter from Hatchway, in Consequence of which he repairs to the Garrison, and performs the last Offices to his Aunt—He is visited by Mr Gauntlet, who invites him to his Marriage . . . . .	39

CONTENTS

	Page
CHAPTER LXXXVII
Peregrine sets out for the Garrison, and meets with a Nymph on the Road, whom he takes into Keeping, and metamorphoses into a fine Lady . . . . .	56
CHAPTER LXXXVIII
He is visited by Pallet—Contracts an Intimacy with a Newmarket Nobleman ; and is by the Knowing-ones taken in . . . . .	65
CHAPTER LXXXIX
He is taken into the Protection of a Great Man—Sets up for a Member of Parliament—Is Disappointed in his Expectation, and finds himself egregiously Outwitted . . . . .	71
CHAPTER XC
Peregrine commences Minister's Dependent—Meets by Accident with Mrs Gauntlet; and descends gradually in the Condition of Life . . . . .	84
CHAPTER XCI
Cadwallader acts the part of a Comforter to his Friend ; and in his turn is consoled by Peregrine, who begins to find himself a most Egregious Dupe . . . . .	95
CHAPTER XCII
He is indulged with a Second Audience by the Minister, of whose Sincerity he is convinced—His Pride and Ambition revive, and again are mortified . . . . .	103
CHAPTER XCIII
Peregrine commits himself to the Public, and is admitted Member of a College of Authors . . . . .	109

CONTENTS

	Page
CHAPTER XCIV
Further Proceedings of the College . . . . .	118

CHAPTER XCV

The young Gentleman is introduced to a Virtuoso of the First Order, and commences Yelper . . . . .	130
--	-----

CHAPTER XCVI

Peregrine finding himself Neglected by Sir Steady Steerwell, expostulates with him in a Letter ; in Consequence of which he is forbid his House, loses his Pension, and incurs the charge of Lunacy . . . . .	138
---	-----

CHAPTER XCVII

He writes against the Minister, by whose Instigation he is Arrested, and moves himself by Habeas Corpus into the Fleet . . . . .	151
--	-----

CHAPTER XCVIII

Pickle seems tolerably well Reconciled to his Cage ; and is by the Clergyman entertained with the Memoirs of a noted Personage, whom he sees by Accident in the Fleet . . . . .	170
---	-----

CHAPTER XCIX

He is surprised with the Appearance of Hatchway and Pipes, who take up their Habitation in his Neighbourhood, contrary to his Inclination and express Desire . . . . .	229
--	-----

CONTENTS

CHAPTER C

Page

These Associates commit an Assault upon Crabtree, for which they are banished from the Fleet—Peregrine begins to feel the Effects of Confinement . . . . . 239

CHAPTER CI

He receives an unexpected Visit; and the Clouds of Misfortune begin to separate . . . . . 246

CHAPTER CII

Peregrine reconciles himself to the Lieutenant, and renews his Connection with Society—Divers Plans are projected in his Behalf, and he has Occasion to exhibit a remarkable Proof of Self-denial . . . . . 254

CHAPTER CIII

He is engaged in a very extraordinary Correspondence, which is interrupted by a very unexpected Event . . . . . 259

CHAPTER CIV

Peregrine holds a consultation with his Friends, in Consequence of which he bids Adieu to the Fleet—He arrives at his Father's House, and asserts his Right of Inheritance . . . . . 268

CONTENTS

CHAPTER CV

Page

He performs the last Offices to his Father, and returns to London, upon a very interesting Design . . . . . 274

CHAPTER THE LAST

He enjoys an Interview with Emilia, and makes himself ample
Amends for all the Mortifications of his Life . . . . . 278