

Contents

---

Preface	page xi
Abbreviations	xiii
1 Introduction	1
Rationale	1
Historical considerations	2
Organization	4
2 Early psychological development	6
The stereotype	6
Early expectations	8
The measurement of development	20
Forecasting development	27
Evaluation	30
3 Dimensions of intelligence	35
The stereotype	35
Qualitative aspects of psychometric intelligence	41
The shape of intelligence	45
Biological aspects of intelligence in Down's syndrome	61
Evaluation	76

4	The foundations of intelligence	78
	Intelligence and karyotype	78
	Familial residuals and intelligence	84
	Environmental correlates of intelligence	87
	Physical correlates of intelligence	95
	Sex and intelligence	104
	Evaluation	109
5	Personality: normal and abnormal	111
	The stereotype	111
	Empirical evidence	119
	Varieties of psychopathology	124
	The correlates of personality	136
	Evaluation	148
6	Socialization	151
	The stereotype	151
	The interaction of social and intellectual performance	163
	The origins of social adaptation	175
	Evaluation	178
7	Ability profiles	180
	Mental ability: psychometric research	181
	Special abilities	194
8	Learning and arousal	205
	Reaction time	206
	Attention and distraction	210
	Discrimination	213
	Drive states	221
	Evaluation	227

9	Speech and language	233
	The stereotype	233
	Mediation hypotheses	245
	Management	251
	Evaluation	259
10	Behaviour management: I. Decision and reaction	261
	The decision for management	262
	Disclosure styles and methods	270
	Psychological aspects of genetic counselling	281
	Conclusions	285
11	Behaviour management: II. Varieties of care	288
	Varieties of early care	288
	Chemical management	307
	Formal education and work preparation	310
	Conclusion	319
12	Overview	321
	Laying ghosts	321
	Options and assumptions	324
	References	328
	Index	361