

CONTENTS

PREFACE	IX
INTRODUCTION	XVII

PART ONE

Problems and Method

CHAP. I. THE PROBLEM OF THE CANONICAL SOURCES IN DAMIANI'S COLLECTED WORKS
I. STATUS OF SOURCE RESEARCH FOR DAMIANI'S WRITINGS
1. Lack of studies on the canonical aspects of Damiani's work as a whole	1
2. Attention to the sources in editions and previous studies	3
II. GENESIS OF THE PRESENT STUDY OF DAMIANI'S CANONICAL SOURCES
1. Frequency and treatment of canonical texts in the editions	3
2. The problem of the immediate sources (fontes formales)	4
3. Earlier views on the formal sources	4
4. Reasons suggesting an investigation of the canonical collections as formal sources (1) for the interim use of the editions, and (2) as one method of approach to a study of Damiani's thought and work	6
CHAP. II. CURRENT QUESTIONS ON THE CONTEMPORARY CANONICAL COLLECTIONS
I. PROBLEMS IN THE HISTORY OF THE CANONICAL COLLECTIONS
1. The canonical collections in relation to the reform	8
2. General histories of the collections available for use	9
3. The need for new collections as the reform progressed	10
4. The question of the "intermediate collections" and of the use of the older collections	10
5. The Collection of Pseudo-Isidore	12
6. The Decretum of Burchard of Worms	12
7. The Collection in 74 Titles	13
II. DAMIANI AS WITNESS AND THE NATURE OF THE EVIDENCE
1. Bulk of his writing done between 1046 (Council of Sutri) and 1072	14
2. His repute as reformer and in matters canonical	15
3. His native environment, travels and personal qualifications	15
4. The problem of evidence for the collections in use and the testimony of Damiani's literary work	16
CHAP. III. METHOD OF INVESTIGATION AND PRESENTATION
I. METHOD OF INVESTIGATION
1. Primary purpose of investigation to establish the canonical collections used	18
2. Practical definition of "canonical" texts and collections	18
3. Procedure	19
4. Criteria, the lack of critical editions and the unpublished material	19
5. Necessity of establishing a preliminary hypothesis	21
II. PLAN AND APPARATUS OF PRESENTATION	21

PART TWO

Texts and Sources

TEXT NUM. 1-296.....	23
----------------------	----

PART THREE

Summation and Tables

CHAP. I. DAMIANI AND THE SACRED CANONS

I. THE FAVORED COLLECTIONS AND THEIR USE

1. The collections : ordinary and occasional.....	134
2. Occurrence of canonical citations.....	136
3. The formal sources in a new edition and for the interim use of the present editions.....	136

II. METHODS AND PRINCIPLES OF CRITICISM

1. The former grammarian and the canons.....	137
2. Contemporary developments in canonical method.....	139
3. Damiani's doctrine of the sources (de fontibus iuris).....	139
4. Damiani's methods of interpretation and conciliation.....	143
5. Damiani's use of the principle of "consonance".....	147

III. DAMIANI AS CANONIST AND THE REFORM

1. His relationship to the earlier reformers and general position in the reform movement.....	148
2. Damiani as canonist and the Italian reformers.....	149
3. His position on some individual questions in the light of his canonical background.....	151
4. Did Damiani compile a canonical collection?.....	154

CHAP. II. THE CANONICAL COLLECTIONS IN THE PRE-GREGORIAN PERIOD

I. THE EVIDENCE ON THE COLLECTIONS IN USE

1. The Dionysian Collections.....	158
2. The Decretum of Burchard of Worms.....	160
3. The Vita S. Gregorii Magni of John the Deacon.....	162
4. The Tracts of Auxilius.....	162
5. The conciliar versions of Anastasius Bibliothecarius.....	164
6. The remaining collections.....	164

II. THE ARGUMENT EX SILENTIO

1. The Collection of Pseudo-Isidore.....	165
2. The Collection in 74 Titles.....	166
3. Other Italian collections.....	166

III. THE CANONICAL COLLECTIONS AND THE REFORM

1. Sketch of the collections in use in Italy.....	167
2. The problem of the relation of the collections to reform policies.....	167
3. Damiani and Humbert and their canonical resources.....	169
4. Different canonical currents as factors in the reform.....	172

CONTENTS

TABLE	I. SYNOPSIS OF TEXTS AND SOURCES.....	176
“	II. COLLECTIONS (FONTES FORMALES).....	186
“	III. AUTHORITIES (FONTES MATERIALES).....	194
	BIBLIOGRAPHY.....	205