

Anais Nin Literary Perspectives

Edited with an introductory essay by
Suzanne Nalbantian

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
Notes on the Contributors	viii
Preface Suzanne Nalbantian	xiii
Introduction	1
1 Aesthetic Lies Suzanne Nalbantian	3
2 Anaïs Nin, My Sister, and Letters to Hugh Guiler (Hugo), from Joaquín Nin-Culmell, 26 December 1978 and 3 October 1979 Joaquín Nin-Culmell	23
Part I Dream Cities and Other Inscapes
3 Cities of Her Own Invention: Urban Iconology in Cities of the Interior Catherine Broderick	33
4 Art, the Dream, the Self Harriet Zinnes	52
5 Anaïs Nin, the Poet Anna Balakian	63
6 Renate's Illusions and Delusions in Collages Marie-Rose Logan	79
Part II Psychoanalysis in Nin's Writings
7 Beyond Therapy: The Enduring Love of Anaïs Nin for Otto Rank Sharon Spencer	97
8 Anaïs and Her Analysts, Rank and Allendy: The Creative and Destructive Aspects Valerie Harms	112

9	Anaïs Nin's Journal of Love: Father-Loss and Incestuous Desire Suzette Henke	120
Part III Gender Readings of the Fiction
10	The Men in Nin's (Characters') Lives Philip K. Jason	139
11	Birth and the Linguistics of Gender: Masculine/ Feminine Lajos Elkan	151
12	Erato Throws a Curve: Anaïs Nin and the Elusive Feminine Voice in Erotica Edmund Miller	164
Part IV Japanese Voices on Nin
13	Anaïs Nin's Words of Power and the Japanese Sybil Tradition Atsuko Miyake	187
14	Anaïs Nin's Femininity and the Banana Yoshimoto Phenomenon Toyoko Yamamoto	199
15	Between Two Languages: The Translation and Reception of Anaïs Nin in Japan Junko Kimura	211
Part V The Genesis and Dissemination of Nin's Works
16	Speaking with Your Skeleton: D.H. Lawrence's Influence on Anaïs Nin Lawrence Wayne Markert	223
17	Black Snow in Winter: Anaïs Nin in Paris – The Lawrence Durrell Connection Corinne Alexandre-Garner	236
18	The Selling of A Spy in the House of Love Benjamin Franklin V	254
	Index	279