

The Making of English Popular Culture

Edited by John Storey

Contents

List of figures	ix
List of contributors	x
Introduction: making popular culture JOHN STOREY	1
1 'The man of penetration and the girl of capacity': negotiating power in erotic culture JENNY SKIPP	14
2 'But it's more than a game. It's an institution': cricket, class and Victorian Britain's imperial Englishness CLAIRE WESTALL	32
3 'Drivel for dregs': perceptions of class, race and gender in British music hall, 1850–1914 DAVID HUXLEY AND DAVID JAMES	47
4 Reading historical photographs: class and gender in nineteenth-century images of Wigan pit brow women SARAH EDGE	61
5 Inventing the Victorian boy: S.O. Beeton's The Boy's Own Magazine JOCHEN PETZOLD	76
6 Accept no substitutions! Advertising, gender and 'race' in constructions of the consumer in the nineteenth century ALLISON CAVANAGH	90

7	Liminal seaside? Working-class tourism in the nineteenth century	104
	ROBERT TROSCHITZ
8	Shocking readers: the genres of Victorian popular fiction, the classes and the book markets	118
	RALF SCHNEIDER
9	Picturing adventure: popular fiction, illustration, and the British Empire, 1875–1914	131
	RALPH CRANE AND LISA FLETCHER
10	‘For the benefit of old boys, young boys, odd boys generally, and even girls’: the irresistible rise of the British comic, 1884–1900	152
	ROBERT SHAIL
11	The spectacle of speech: Victorian popular lectures and mass print culture	165
	ANNE-JULIA ZWIERLEIN
12	‘You ought to see my phonograph’: the visual wonder of recorded sound (1877–1900)	184
	ELODIE A. ROY
13	Class and the invention of tradition: the cases of Christmas, football, and folksong	197
	JOHN STOREY
14	Ripping yarns: capturing (not catching) and constructing the myth of Jack the Ripper in nineteenth-century London	213
	JOHN PAUL GREEN
	Index	225