

Table of contents

A foreword	VII
INTRODUCTION
From gesture in conversation to visible action as utterance Mandana Seyfeddinipur and Marianne Gullberg	1
Part I. Gaze and face
Including facial gestures in gesture–speech ensembles Janet Bavelas, Jennifer Gerwing and Sara Healing	15
Mutual gaze and recognition: Revisiting Kendon’s “Gaze direction in two-person conversation” Jürgen Streeck	35
Part II. Manual gestures – Quotable gestures and pointing
Gesture in the communicative ecology of a South African township Heather Brookes	59
The emblem as metaphor David McNeill	75
Pointing, talk, and the bodies: Reference and joint attention as embodied interactional achievements Lorenza Mondada	95
Part III. Manual gestures – Their nature and relationship to language
Gesture as “deliberate expressive movement” Cornelia Müller	127
On the lower limit of gesture Mats Andrén	153

Part IV. Language evolution

- The word according to Adam: The role of gesture in language evolution 177
Michael C. Corballis
- The intelligibility of gesture within a framework of co-operative action 199
Charles Goodwin

Part V. Sign systems

- Signs and space in Arandic sand narratives 219
Jennifer Green
- Different strokes: Gesture phrases and gesture units
in a family homesign from Chiapas, Mexico 245
John B. Haviland
- Gesture in all its forms: Following in the footsteps of Adam Kendon 289
Susan Goldin-Meadow

Part VI. Child language development

- The development of two pragmatic gestures of the so-called
Open Hand Supine family in Italian children 311
Maria Graziano
- How gestures help children to track reference in narrative 331
Carla Cristilli
- Gestures and multimodal development: Some key issues for language acquisition 351
Michèle Guidetti, Katerina Fibigerova and Jean-Marc Colletta
- Name index 371
- Subject index 373