

Contents

List of Contributors	page	viii
General introduction Brian McHale and Len Platt		i
PART I POSTMODERNISM BEFORE POSTMODERNITY?		15
Introduction Postmodernism – rupture, tradition, historical reason? Len Platt		17
1 Postmodernism and its precursors Joe Bray		25
2 After the Holocaust Robert Eaglestone		39
3 Empire's ebb Theo D'haen		52
4 Cold War culture at the mid-century Alan Nadel		67
PART II THE LONG SIXTIES, 1954–1975		83
Introduction On or about the year 1966 Brian McHale		85
5 Mass mediation John Johnston		95
6 Countercultures David R. Shumway		112

7	New novels: from the 1950s to 1970 Randall Stevenson	127
8	The Latin American boom and the invention of magic realism Wendy B. Faris	143
9	Rise of theory Thomas Docherty	159
PART III THE MAJOR PHASE: PEAK POSTMODERNISM, 1973–1991		173
	Introduction Branding Brian McHale	175
10	The architectural paradigm Brian McHale	185
11	The dematerialization of the art object – a conversation Michael Mercil and Amanda Gluibizzi	199
12	The New Hollywood cinema and after John Hellmann	214
13	Second-wave feminism and after Robyn Warhol	230
14	Gay and lesbian subcultures from Stonewall to Angels in America Martin Dines	247
15	The “post” in postcolonial Sara Upstone	262
16	Celtic postmodernism – Scotland and the breakup of Britain Len Platt	278
17	Historiographic metafiction Amy Elias	293
18	High and low, or Avant-Pop Brian McHale	308
19	The Oulipo, language poetry, and proceduralism Andrew Epstein	324

Contents

vii

20	From punk rock to the politics of pop Barry Shank	339
21	The cyberworld is (not) flat: cyberpunk and globalization Elana Gomel	353
22	The art market and the revival of painting in the 1990s Frazer Ward	369
23	Hip-hop is (not) postmodern James Braxton Peterson	383
 PART IV INTERREGNUM, 1989–2001		397
	Introduction After the fall, 1989 Brian McHale and Len Platt	399
24	Postmodern Japan and global visual culture Takayuki Tatsumi	405
25	Digital culture and posthumanism David Ciccoricco	419
26	Culture wars at the turn of the millennium Ellen G. Friedman	434
27	Second-generation postmoderns Stephen J. Burn	450
28	Postmodern China Wang Ning	465
29	Postmodernism, cosmopolitanism, planetarism Christian Moraru	480
	Epilogue 2001, 2008, and after Andrew Hoberek	497
	 Index	515