

Contents

List of illustrations	page vii
List of contributors	x
Acknowledgments	xii
1 Introduction: manuscripts and cultural history Michael Johnston and Michael Van Dussen	I
2 Bibliographical theory and the textuality of the codex: toward a history of the premodern book Seth Lerer	17
3 What is a manuscript culture? Technologies of the manuscript matrix Stephen G. Nichols	34
4 Decoding the material book: cultural residue in medieval manuscripts Erik Kwakkel	60
5 Organizing manuscript and print: from compilatio to compilation Jeffrey Todd Knight	77
6 Containing the book: the institutional afterlives of medieval manuscripts Siân Echard	96
7 Medieval manuscripts: media archaeology and the digital incunable Martin K. Foy	119
8 The circulation of texts in manuscript culture Pascale Bourgain	140

9	Multilingualism and late medieval manuscript culture Lucie Doležalová	160
10	Miscellaneity and variance in the medieval book Arthur Bahr	181
11	Vernacular authorship and the control of manuscript production Andrew Taylor	199
12	Medieval French and Italian literature: towards a manuscript history Keith Busby and Christopher Kleinhenz	215
13	Afterword: social history of the book and beyond: Originalia , medieval literary theory, and the aesthetics of paleography Kathryn Kerby-Fulton	243
	Bibliography	255
	Index	295