

CONTENTS

Foreword	5
Part One: THOMAS WILLIAM ROBERTSON	7
Chapter One: «The Half Caste»	7
Chapter Two: «A Row in the House»	11
Chapter Three: «Caste»	15
A. Movement and Position	15
B. Action and Gesture	18
1. Deictic Gestures	23
2. The Acting of Words	24
C. Intonation	26
D. Facial Expression and Attitude	28
E. Conception of Character	30
F. The Scenery	35
Part Two: ARTHUR WING PINERO	41
Chapter One: «Dandy Dick»	42
A. Scenery and Atmosphere	44
B. Action and Character	47
Chapter Two: «The Second Mrs. Tanqueray»	54
A. The Heritage of T. W. Robertson	56
B. Interpretative Scenic Realism	58
C. The Restraint of Movement and Accidental Action	62
D. The Gestic Method	66
1. Understatement	66
2. The Gestic Leitmotif	68
E. The Rising Significance of Intonation	73
F. The Integration of the Characters	76
G. Henrik Ibsen and Pinero	80
Part Three: HENRY ARTHUR JONES	85
Chapter One: The Heritage of Melodrama. «The Silver King»	86
Chapter Two: The Defiance of Realism	92
A. «The Tempter»	94
1. Symbolic Scenery	95
2. Symbolic Character and Action	98
B. «Michael and his Lost Angel»	104
1. The Scenery	104
2. The Characters	109
Chapter Three: The Return to Realism	115
Part Four: WILLIAM SCHWENCK GILBERT	125
Chapter One: «The Palace of Truth»	126
A. The Dialectic Relation of the Stage Directions to the Dialogue	126
B. The Disillusioning Function of the Textual Directions	129

Chapter Two: The Savoy Operas	131
A. The Irrationality of Opera	133
B. Theatrical Alienation	136
C. The Caricature of the Theatre	140
1. Structure and Style	140
2. Character and Behaviour	144
D. The Absurdity of Reality	149
 Part Five: OSCAR WILDE	 158
Chapter One: Dramatic Aestheticism	159
Chapter Two: Melodramatic Realism	170
A. Strategy and Tactics	170
B. Movement, Gesture and Attitude	174
C. Dialogue and Diction	178
Chapter Three: «The Importance of Being Earnest»	182
A. The Heritage of Traditional Farce	183
B. Paradoxicality and the Farce of Manners	188
 Part Six: GEORGE BERNARD SHAW	 196
Chapter One: G. B. Shaw and Victorian Tradition	196
Chapter Two: The Shavian Modification of Tradition	210
A. The Exponents of Natural History	211
1. The New Woman	211
2. The Real Hero	222
B. The Minor Characters in Relation to the Protagonist	231
Chapter Three: Shaw and the Production	243
A. The Scenery	243
B. The Costumes	246
C. Movement	248
D. Gesture and Diction	250
Chapter Four: The Interaction of the Dialogue and the Stage Directions ..	253
A. Textual References to Place and Time	255
B. Textual References to the Behaviour of the Characters	264
1. Self-Revelation	264
2. Mutual Characterization	269
3. Mirror Passages	274
Costume and Appearance (274) – Intonation (275) – Facial Expression (276) – Movement and Position (277) – Gesture and Attitude
(278)
4. Reported Scenes	281
5. Vocabulary and Sentence-Structure	285
Demonstrative Pronouns and Adverbs (285) – Characteristic Speech
(286) – Sentence-Structure (287)
 CONCLUSION	 292
NOTES	295