

Table of contents

PREFACE	7
INTRODUCTION	9
I. LAURENCE STERNE'S TRISTRAM SHANDY : A PLEA FOR COMMUNICATION	15
1. Narrator as Entertainer	16
2. Fiction as Artifact	22
3. Reader as Narratee	28
Conclusion	34
II. NABOKOV'S ADA : METAFICTION AS AESTHETIC BLISS	37
1. Narrators as Lovers	38
2. Narrative as Revealed Deception	44
3. Narratee as Intimate Intruder	52
Conclusion	55
III. JOHN BARTH'S METAFICTIONAL REDEMPTION	57
THE SOT-WEED FACTOR
1. The Poet as Saviour	59
2. Reconciliation Through Narrative	67
3. The Capricious Reader	76
4. Conclusion – The Sot-Weed Factor	77
GILES GOAT-BOY	79
1. The Heroic Narrator	80
2. Auto-Narrative	86
3. The Single-Minded Reader	89
4. Conclusion – Giles Goat-Boy	92
Conclusion	93

IV. SAMUEL BECKETT'S TRILOGY: CIRCLING DISINTEGRATION	97
MOLLOY, PART I
1. Puppet on a String: The Uncommunicative, Suffering Narrator	99
2. Narrative Journey Through Mental Landscapes	102
3. Narratee: Narrator Talking to Himself	108
MOLLOY, PART II
1. The Undecipherable Narrator	109
2. Narrative as Self-Investigation	114
3. The Neglected Narratee	118
4. Conclusion – Molloy	118
MALONE DIES
1. The Obtuse Narrator	121
2. Narrative in Grey	124
3. The Superfluous Narratee	132
4. Conclusion – Malone Dies	134
THE UNNAMABLE
1. Narrator Without Identity	135
2. Narrative at a Deadlock	139
3. The Loss of Narratee	142
4. Conclusion – The Unnamable	143
Conclusion	144
THE MEANING OF METAFICTION – CONCLUSION	151
NOTES	156
BIBLIOGRAPHY	164
INDEX	171