

Contents

Acknowledgments, vii

Introduction, ix

PHILIP K. JASON

A Different World: The Vietnam Veteran Novel Comes Home, 1

MARIA S. BONN

“She’s a Pretty Woman . . . for a Gook”:
The Misogyny of the Vietnam War, 15

JACQUELINE E. LAWSON

“Humping the Boonies”: Sex, Combat, and the Female in Bobbie Ann Mason’s In Country, 38

KATHERINE KINNEY

Resistance and Revision in Poetry by Vietnam War Veterans, 49

LORRIE SMITH

Doing It Wrong Is Getting It Right:
America’s Vietnam War Drama, 67

DON RINGNALDA

Yossarian’s Legacy: Catch-22 and the Vietnam War, 88

JOHN CLARK PRATT

Conradian Darkness in John Clark Pratt’s
The Laotian Fragments, 111

JAMES R. AUBREY

Vietnam and John Winthrop’s Vision of Community, 124

OWEN W. GILMAN, JR.

The (Hidden) Antiwar Activist in Vietnam War Fiction, 141

JACQUELINE R. SMETAK

Realism, Verisimilitude, and the Depiction of Vietnam Veterans in In Country, 166

MATTHEW C. STEWART

“A Hard Story to Tell”: The Vietnam War in Joan Didion’s Democracy, 180

STUART CHING

Darkness in the East: The Vietnam Novels of Takeshi Kaiko, 189

MARK A. HEBERLE

Line of Departure: The Atrocity in Vietnam War Literature, 200

CORNELIUS A. CRONIN

Speaking the Language of Pain: Vietnam War Literature in the Context of a Literature of Trauma, 217

KALI TAL