

Contents

List of Illustrations	vii
Preface	ix
Abbreviations	xi
Introduction	I
Trade and Crusade	2
Sources for the Aegean Crusades	8
1 The Splintered Aegean World	17
Byzantium and its Rivals after 1204	20
Western Hostility towards Byzantium after 1204	27
2 A New Enemy: The Emergence of the Turks as a 'Target' of Crusade	32
The Emergence of the Turkish Beyliks in Anatolia	32
Early Western Views of the Turks	37
Rhetoric and Justification for Crusading against the Turks	55
3 Latin Response to the Turks: The Naval Leagues	63
Crusading after the Fall of Acre	64
Origins of a Naval League	66
The Naval League of 1333–1334	70
The Naval Leagues of the Smyrna Campaign (1343–1352)	74
4 Logistics and Strategies	79
Ship Types	79
Manpower	83
Tactics	88
5 The Papacy and the Naval Leagues	94
The Leagues in the Context of Papal Crusading Strategy	94
Crusade Mechanisms in the Aegean Theatre	107
6 Cross-Cultural Trade in the Aegean and Economic Mechanisms for Merchant Crusaders	119
Initial Conflicts between Commerce and Crusade in the Aegean	120
Economic Crises during the Crusade of Smyrna	127
Trade Licences Granted by Clement VI	132
Trade Licences and Papal Finances	137

Conclusion	143
Appendices
1 Indulgences for Crusades in the Aegean	149
2 Trade Licences Granted contra Turchos	153
3 Trade Licences Related to Crusades against the Turks	155
4 Documents	157
5 List of Rulers	163
Bibliography	167
Index	187