

Contents

| | |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| Acknowledgments | ix |
| Introduction | 1 |
| | |
| 1. Old English Meter | 6 |
| 1.1 Misreadings of Old English Meter | 6 |
| 1.2 Syllable Count | 9 |
| 1.3 Tendency Statements as Constraints on Dips | 13 |
| 1.4 Resolution, Kuhn's Laws, and the Antepenultimate Syllable | 16 |
| 1.5 Alternating Rhythm and Clashing Stress | 26 |
| 1.6 Old English: Stress-Timed or Syllable-Timed? | 30 |
| 1.7 The Derivativeness of Sievers' Five Types | 37 |
| | |
| 2. Old English Rhythmical Prose and Early Middle English Meter | 41 |
| 2.1 Disjunctions and Continuities in Metrical Style | 41 |
| 2.2 Ælfric's Rhythmical Prose | 42 |
| 2.3 The End of the Classical Meter: The Death of Edward (1066) and Durham (c. 1100) | 52 |
| 2.4 The Grave (c. 1150) | 56 |
| 2.5 The Worcester Fragments (c. 1170) | 57 |
| 2.6 Lawman's Brut (c. 1200) | 58 |
| 2.7 The Katherine Group (c. 1200) | 63 |
| | |
| 3. Fourteenth-Century Meter: Final -e | 66 |
| 3.1 Surprising Facts | 66 |
| 3.2 Old Norse Loans | 69 |
| 3.3 Old French Loans | 71 |
| 3.4 Native Words | 72 |
| 3.5 Double Feminine Endings | 74 |
| 3.6 Phonological Rules | 76 |

| | |
|----------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 3.7 The Structure of the Evidence and the Argument | 81 |
| 3.8 Systematic Final -e | 83 |
| 4. Fourteenth-Century Meter: The Abstract Pattern | 85 |
| 4.1 The Count of Stresses and the Regulation of Dips | 85 |
| 4.2 Oakden's Evidence | 87 |
| 4.3 Distributional Evidence from Cleanness | 89 |
| 4.4 A Theory of Middle English Alliterative Meter | 91 |
| 4.5 The Structure of the Evidence and the Argument | 94 |
| 4.6 Generalizations and Exceptions | 99 |
| 4.7 Abduction | 103 |
| 5. The Modes of English Meter | 114 |
| 5.1 The Central Rift in English Prosody | 114 |
| 5.2 Modern Manifestations of Strong Stress | 115 |
| 5.3 The Decasyllabic Meter of Chaucer and Gascoigne | 117 |
| 5.4 The Iambic Pentameter of Modern English | 122 |
| 5.5 The Five Elements and Four Compound Modes of English Meter | 128 |
| 5.6 Strong-Stress Meter Again | 129 |
| 6. Theoretical Implications | 132 |
| 6.1 The English Alliterative Tradition | 132 |
| 6.2 Meter in Modern Theory and in the Poet's Mind | 133 |
| 6.3 Meter, Performance, and Pause in Iambic Pentameter | 134 |
| 6.4 Pause and Ictus in Old English Meter | 137 |
| 6.5 The Modes of English Meter in Their Temporal Setting | 151 |
| 6.6 Multiple Mental Texts | 152 |
| Appendix | 155 |
| Notes | 163 |
| Bibliography | 177 |
| Index | 185 |