

Table of Contents

1.	Fictions of Australian History	9
1.1.	Australian History: Icons and Types	13
1.2.	Australia and Post-Colonial Studies	19
1.3.	Post-Colonial History and Historical Understanding	26
1.4.	Representing History in Historical Novels	39
1.4.1.	The Genre: Historical Novels	40
1.4.2.	A Descriptive Framework for the Narratological Characterisation of Historical Novels	45
1.5.	Two Groups of Australian Historical Novels in the Light of Materiality and Myth	51
PART I
	Analysing Materiality: Meaning and Fixity	57
2.	History in Principles: Henry Handel Richardson's The Fortunes of Richard Mahony (1930)	69
2.1.	The Colony and Its Past in Detail	72
2.2.	Binary Oppositions and Principles: Flight from History	81
2.3.	Metonymy: Hide and Seek	97
3.	History as Stories and Thistles: Peter Carey's Jack Maggs (1997) and Oscar and Lucinda (1988)	109
3.1.	The Bookkeeping of History: Jack Maggs	112
3.1.1.	The History of a Story: Jack Maggs and Intertextuality	113
3.1.2.	Tokens and Exchanges, Possessions and Secrets	123
3.1.3.	Intertextual Materiality: History and Origins	133
3.2.	The Gamble of History: Oscar and Lucinda	143
3.2.1.	A History of Individuals and Instances	144
3.2.2.	'The White Man's Dreaming': Materiality, Tokens, and Symbols	156
3.2.3.	The Cultural Material of History: Truth, Order, and the Gamble of Metaphors	167
3.3.	Thistles	186

PART II

Analysing Myth: Narrative and Time	189
4. Prophetic History: Patrick White's The Tree of Man (1955) and A Fringe of Leaves (1976)	205
4.1. History in Constants: The Tree of Man	209
4.1.1. 'Filling the Void': The Mythical Method and Australian History	210
4.1.2. Generating History	219
4.1.3. Illuminating History	230
4.2. History in Captivity: A Fringe of Leaves	237
4.2.1. The Roles of a Colonial Myth	238
4.2.2. Caught in a Fringe	254
4.2.3. Suffering Cannibalism	262
4.3. The Passivity of Prophecy	276
5. History as Memory, Myth, and Mystery: Rodney Halls's Yandilli Trilogy (1994)	279
5.1. Framing History: Patterns and Psyche	282
5.2. Visions: The Second Bridegroom	293
5.2.1. A Myopic Bridegroom	293
5.2.2. Fences	302
5.2.3. Forgery	309
5.3. Sacrifices: Captivity Captive	319
5.3.1. Mystery	319
5.3.2. Incest	326
5.3.3. The Spiralling of Trauma	342
6. The Literary Art of Witnessing the Australian Past: The Ethical and Political Potential of Historical Novels	349
6.1. Synopsis: Representing Australian History	350
6.1.1. The Light of Materiality and Myth	350
6.1.2. Re-minding and Re-membling: Two Groups of Australian Historical Novels	355
6.1.3. Memory, The Future of History, and the Rhetoric of Past and Present	360
6.2. Understanding History: Fictional Witnessing of the Past and Its Moral Resonances	365
References	379