
Contents

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction xi

PART ONE

Personal Epistles

- 1 Private and public sources 3
- 2 Transportation and communication 6
- 3 New ways in the new world 9
- 4 Reflection and remorse 14
- 5 Authoritative woman 17
- 6 Novel letters 27
- 7 From the other side 34
- 8 Sanity and silences 47
- 9 Connections and comparisons 52
- 10 'A difference of view' 60

PART TWO

Professional Pioneers

- 1 Facts from the frontier 65
- 2 Professional writer 68
- 3 Personal chronicles and present problems 82
- 4 Confounding conventions 91
- 5 First fictions 97
- 6 Australian native 103
- 7 Forerunner and forgotten 112
- 8 Ideal and reality 116
- 9 Links in the chain 130
- 10 Woman to woman 138

PART THREEPopular Prose

- 1 Setting the scene 143
- 2 Ada Cambridge 1844–1926 151
- 3 'Tasma' (Jessie Couvreur) 1848–97 155
- 4 Rosa Praed 1851–1935 162
- 5 Catherine Helen Spence and Catherine Martin 176
- 6 The supporting cast 185
- 7 Black and white issues 195
- 9 The major role of the minor writers 200
- 9 Literary partnerships 218
- 10 Women and children 220

PART FOURPresent Position

- 1 Nettie's network 237
- 2 Women's responsibility 285
- 3 Postscript 293

Notes 303

References 311

Index 319