

Contents

Chapter 1	History of English and historical linguistics	7
	1 Periods and their justification	7
	2 Diachronic and synchronic linguistics	10
	3 Internal and external history of English	10
	4 Sources	11
	5 Spoken language and written language	13
	Further reading	14
Chapter 2	Old English: Germanic dialects	15
	1 Sociohistorical context	15
	2 Communicative needs and genres	19
	3 Lexical inventory	23
	4 Spelling and pronunciation	24
	5 Syntax and morphology	25
	Further reading	28
Chapter 3	Middle English: The influence of French	29
	1 Sociohistorical context	29
	2 Communicative needs and genres	31
	3 Middle English dialects and standardisation	33
	4 Lexical inventory	36
	5 Syntax and morphology	38
	Further reading	40
Chapter 4	Early Modern English: Standardisation	41
	1 Sociohistorical context	41
	2 Communicative needs and genres	46
	3 Lexical inventory	50
	4 Pronunciation: The Great Vowel Shift	53
	5 Syntax and morphology	54
	Further reading	56
Chapter 5	Modern English: The expansion of English	57
	1 Communicative needs and genres	57
	2 Lexical inventory	60
	3 Colonial expansion	61
	4 English as a world language	66
	Further reading	68
Chapter 6	At the dawn of the twenty-first century: English in the computer age	69
	1 The new information revolution	69
	2 Visual and multimodal English	71

	3 Hypertext and hypermedia	73
	4 English in cyberspace	75
	5 The future of English	77
	Further reading	78
Chapter 7	Sociohistorical linguistics	79
	1 Introduction	79
	2 Social context in Tudor and Stuart England	82
	3 Ye and you in subject position	85
	4 Third person singular -s vs. -th	86
	5 Inversion after then	87
	Further reading	89
Chapter 8	Historical pragmatics	90
	1 Introduction	90
	2 Address terms	92
	3 Speech acts: The case of insults	95
	4 Wills from Old English orality to video orality	98
	Further reading	100
Chapter 9	Historical textlinguistics and historical dialogue analysis . .	101
	1 Introduction	101
	2 The cookery recipe	103
	3 The evolution of genres	105
	4 History of forms of dialogue	108
	Further reading	109
Chapter 10	Historical semantics	111
	1 Introduction	111
	2 Communicative situations of innovation	112
	3 Communicative resources for innovation	113
	4 Results of semantic change	118
	Further reading	120
Chapter 11	Historical syntax	121
	1 Introduction	121
	2 Word order from Old English to Modern English	122
	3 The empty operator do	126
	Further reading	129
Appendix 1	Texts	130
	1 Old English	130
	Text 1: The Anglo-Saxon Chronicle : The year 449	130
	Text 2: Medicinal recipe	130
	Text 3: Beowulf (Beowulf's boasting speech)	131

2 Middle English	132
Text 4: Proclamation by Henry III (1258)	132
Text 5: Ancrene Wisse ('The Guide or Rule for Anchoresses') . .	133
Text 6: Chaucer's Canterbury Tales , General Prologue (Portrait of the Wife of Bath)	134
Text 7: Personal letter: Agnes Paston to William Paston I . . .	136
3 Early Modern English	136
Text 8: Pamphlet against Luther (1529)	136
Text 9: Shakespeare: Hamlet, Prince of Denmark (1600)	138
Text 10: The Authorised Version of the Bible: The Sermon on the Mount	139
Text 11: Scientific Writing: Robert Boyle, Electricity and Magnetism (1675–6)	140
Text 12: Court Record: The Trial of Lady Alice Lisle (1685) . .	142
4 Modern English	144
Text 13: Declaration of Independence (1776)	144
Text 14: Scientific writing: Introduction to the New English Dictionary (1888)	145
Text 15: International English: Air traffic control interaction, Düsseldorf, 1992	146
5 At the dawn of the 21st century	147
Text 16: E-mail, November 1999	147
Text 17: Online newspaper: The Sun , February 29, 2000	148
Text 18: Internet Relay Chat, January 1999	149
Appendix 2 Electronic tools for English historical linguistics	151
1 The Oxford English Dictionary on CD-ROM	151
2 English language corpora	152
3 Concordance programs	154
4 Resources on the World Wide Web	156
References	159