

Contents

1	Introduction.....	7
2	Environment and Empire.....	15
2.1	Postcolonial Ecocriticism.....	15
2.2	Environmental Discourses and Colonialism.....	25
2.3	NaturalCultural Contact Zones.....	41
3	The Post-War Native American Novel.....	49
3.1	The Homing-Plot Novel as Red Power Counter-Pastoral	49
3.2	Trickster Earth: The Postmodern Native American Novel	61
4	Counter-Pastoral Revisions.....	79
4.1	Leslie Marmon Silko, Gardens in the Dunes	79
4.1.1	Revisiting American Gardens.....	81
4.1.2	Tracing the Routes of Species.....	94
4.2	Kiana Davenport, Shark Dialogues	102
4.2.1	Re-Writing Paradise.....	104
4.2.2	Tracing the Routes of Species.....	116

5	(Re-)Creating Trickster Earth.....	127
5.1	Gerald Vizenor, Dead Voices	127
5.1.1	Creating a New Wilderness in the City.....	128
5.1.2	New Stories of Urban Survival.....	145
5.2	Diane Glancy, The Man Who Heard the Land	151
5.2.1	Reconciling Conflicting Narratives: Recovering Trickster Stories.....	153
5.2.2	Hearing the Land.....	162
6	Riding the Trail of Tears : Blake Hausman’s Cyber Pastoral...	171
6.1	(Re-)Creating a Virtual ‘Motherland’.....	174
6.2	“Like Life Itself”: Inhabiting Virtual Environments.....	192
7	Conclusion.....	203
8	Bibliography.....	207