

Contents

List of Tables xi

List of Abbreviations xiii

Preface xvii

Part One The Emergence of the Egyptian Workers' Movement, 1882–1942

I Introduction 3

The Egyptian Working Class

The Development of Capitalism in Egypt

The Wafd

Class and Nation in Colonial Countries

The Historiography of the Egyptian Workers' Movement

II The Formation of the Egyptian Working Class 23

Peasants into Workers

The Coalheavers of Port Said

From Guild Members to Wage Workers

Immigrant Workers

A Working Class in Formation

Continuity and Change in the Interwar Period

III.	The Emergence of Labor Activism, 1899–1914	48
	Cigarette Workers: An Embattled Elite
	The Tramway Workers of Cairo
	The Nationalist Party and the Workers
	Struggle at the ‘Anabir
	The First Wave in Perspective
IV	1919: Labor Upsurge and National Revolution	83
	The Revival of Labor Activity
	Egyptian Workers and Egyptian Nationalism
	The Cairo Tramway Workers in the Revolution
	Railway Workers and the Revolution
	Patterns of Participation and Leadership
	Radicalism and Nationalism at the Suez Canal
	August 1919: “Il Pleut des Syndicats!”
	Dénouement: The Cairo Tram Strike
V	The Unions, the Left, and the Wafd, 1920–1924	121
	The Tramway Workers on the Defensive
	The Left and the Labor Movement
	The Wafd and the Workers
	The Wafd’s Conception of the Working Class
	Promises and Results of Wafdist Hegemony
VI	Workers, Effendis, Pashas, and a Prince	171
	The Pashas of Labor
	Aborted Hopes
	From Nahhas Pasha to Sidqi Pasha
	Prince of the Workers
	The Repression of the Labor Movement
	The Resurgence of the <small>NFTUE</small>
	The Struggle for Power in the Labor Movement
VII	Toward an Independent Workers’ Movement	218
	The Wafd Restored
	A New Departure
	The Wafd in Crisis and the Workers
	The Coalescence of a New Leadership
	Egypt and the World War
	The Cairo Tramway Workers, 1939–1942

Part Two
Class Conflict and National Struggle
1942–1954

- VIII The Formation of an Industrial Proletariat 257
 The Growth of the Industrial Working Class
 Contradictory and Uneven Development
 “The Labor Question”
 Textiles: The Leading Sector
- IX The Struggle for the Trade Unions During the War 285
 The Wafd and the Shubra al-Khayma Textile Workers
 The Legalization of Trade Unions
 Reassertion of Wafd Leadership over the Trade Union
 Movement
 Resistance to Wafd Domination
 Announcement of the Cadre for Government Workers
 ‘Abbas Halim Returns to the Labor Movement
 British Attempts to Co-opt the Labor Movement
- X Communism and the Egyptian Workers’ Movement,
 1942–1948 310
 New Dawn and the Shubra al-Khayma Textile Workers
 Beyond Trade Union Politics: Workers in the Electoral Arena
 The Egyptian Movement for National Liberation
 Communist Factionalism and the Workers’ Movement
 The Congress of the World Federation of Trade Unions
 The Workers’ Committee for National Liberation
 The National Committee of Workers and Students
 February 21, 1946: Problems and Prospects
 The Attempt to Establish Trade Union Unity
 Repression and Reorganization
 Strike at Misr Spinning and Weaving Company
 The Strike Wave Continues
- XI The Muslim Brothers and the Egyptian Workers’
 Movement 363
 Muslim Brothers and Communists in Shubra al-Khayma
 The Great Confrontation
 The Muslim Brothers’ Vision of a “Moral Economy”
 Methods of Trade Union Struggle

x Contents

	Local Strength in the Canal Zone Dissolution, Reformation, and Radicalization
XII	The Labor Movement and the Crisis of the Old Regime	395
	The Labor Movement and the Final Wafd Regime Broadening Communist Influence in the Workers' Movement Toward a National Trade Union Federation From the Cairo Fire to the Military Coup
XIII	The Free Officers and the Labor Movement	418
	Kafr al-Dawwar: A Turning Point Trade Unions and the Military Regime After Kafr al-Dawwar The RCC's Labor Policy: Corporatism and Paternalism The Crisis of March 1954 March 1954: An Assessment
XIV	Conclusion	448
	Bibliography	463
	Index	479