

Table of contents

Acknowledgements

xi

1. Introduction to 'carrier sanctions'

1.1	Introduction	1
1.2	Old and new carrier sanctions policies	2
1.3	Research focus and questions	4
1.3.1	A socio-legal study on immigration	4
1.3.2	Three mutual relationships	5
1.3.3	Central question	8
1.4	Research methods and considerations	9
1.4.1	Case selection: the states	9
1.4.2	The carriers	11
1.4.3	Interviews	12
1.4.4	Terminology	14
1.5	Structure of the book	16

2. Enlisting carriers in immigration control: a theoretical exploration

2.1	Theoretical introduction	17
2.2	Characterising carrier involvement: third-party liability, third-party policing	18
2.3	Why governments delegate tasks: exploring 'shifts in governance'	19
2.3.1	A general transformation of government?	19
2.3.2	Shifting governance?	21
2.3.3	The state 'cannot do it alone' or others can do it better	23
2.3.4	Concluding remarks on the 'why' of carrier sanctions	24
2.4	Where carrier sanctions policies are situated	25
2.4.1	States and immigration: losing control?	25
2.4.2	Carrier sanctions as remote control instruments	27
2.4.3	A transformation of border controls	28
2.4.4	Concluding remarks on the 'where' of carrier sanctions	29
2.5	How carriers are involved in immigration control	29
2.5.1	Ensuring compliance from third parties: rule setting, monitoring and enforcement	30
2.5.2	Enforcement strategies: deterrence-compliance continuum?	31
2.5.3	Enforcement and compliance in third-party involvement	34
2.6	Theoretical notions in analysing carrier sanctions policies in the Netherlands and the UK, a complex matter in which context matters	34

3. The Netherlands: development of carriers' liability legislation and policy

3.1	Introduction	37
3.2	Carrier obligations in the Aliens Act 1965 and subsequent developments	38

3.3	Changes to the Aliens Act: duty of care	40
3.3.1	Content of the duty of care	41
3.3.2	Acting in breach of the duty of care	42
3.4	Transcript Duty	44
3.4.1	Supplementing the duty of care	44
3.4.2	Content of the transcript duty	45
3.5	Forwarding passenger data	47
3.5.1	Linking immigration control to security and terrorism	47
3.5.2	The API Directive	49
3.5.3	Content of the duty to forward passenger data	50
3.5.4	Focus on airlines	51
3.6	Sanctions for carriers I: re-transportation and recouping costs	51
3.6.1	Civil sanction: re-transportation duty	51
3.6.2	Recouping costs of carriers	54
3.6.3	Costs regarding inadmissible passengers	54
3.7	Sanctions for carriers II: criminal sanctions	55
3.7.1	Introducing criminal sanctions	55
3.7.2	The choice of a criminal sanction and the position of asylum seekers	56
3.8	Conclusion	57
4.	The United Kingdom: developments in carriers' liability legislation in UK law
4.1	Introduction	59
4.2	Immigration Act 1971	59
4.3	Immigration (Carriers' Liability) Act 1987	60
4.3.1	Introducing carriers' liability in the UK	60
4.3.2	Provisions for carriers in the ICLA	62
4.3.3	Results of the carriers' liability regime	62
4.4	Immigration and Asylum Act 1999: introducing the civil penalty regime	63
4.4.1	Strengthening existing provisions	63
4.4.2	The civil penalty as a new sanction	64
4.5	Development of the civil penalty	65
4.5.1	The Roth case	65
4.5.2	Amendments to the civil penalty regime	66
4.6	Sanctions for carriers and the waiving of fines	67
4.6.1	Sanctions	67
4.6.2	Waiving fines	68
4.7	The position of carriers' liability and the civil penalty in UK immigration control	69
4.8	'Upstream' measures and tasks for carriers: passenger information and e-borders	70
4.8.1	Extending provisions on passenger information	71
4.8.2	Introduction of the e-Borders programme	71
4.8.3	e-Borders: Authority to Carry scheme	72
4.9	Conclusion	73

5.	International and European legislative framework
5.1	Introduction	75
5.2	International cooperation in Civil Aviation: the Chicago Convention	75
5.2.1	ICAO and the Chicago Convention	75
5.2.2	Carrier sanctions in Annex 9 ‘Facilitation’	76
5.3	The Schengen Agreement and the Convention Implementing the Schengen Agreement	79
5.3.1	Carrier obligations in ‘Schengen’	80
5.4	European attention for carrier sanctions	82
5.5	Council Directive 2001/51/EC harmonising carriers’ liability penalties	83
5.5.1	The French initiative	83
5.5.2	Content of the Carrier Sanctions Directive	83
5.5.3	Developing the Carrier Sanctions Directive	84
5.5.4	EP advice on the Carrier Sanctions Directive	86
5.6	Directive 2004/82: obligation of carriers to communicate passenger data	87
5.6.1	The Spanish initiative	88
5.6.2	Content of the API Directive	88
5.6.3	Developing the API Directive	89
5.6.4	Discussion on data protection and purpose limitation	90
5.7	Developing measures for carriers	93
5.8	Conclusion	94
6.	Carrier sanctions in a system of measures
6.1	Stimulating compliance: training and information	97
6.1.1	The Netherlands	98
6.1.2	United Kingdom	99
6.1.3	Concluding remarks on training and information	100
6.2	Advising carriers: ILOs, ALOs and ILMs	101
6.2.1	Immigration liaison officers and managers	101
6.2.2	Liaison officers in the European context	102
6.2.3	Differences between Dutch and British liaison officers	104
6.2.4	Pre-boarding checks	105
6.2.5	Permissive advice?	107
6.2.6	Liaison officers’ deployment: monitoring or support?	112
6.2.7	Concluding remarks on the deployment of liaison officers	113
6.3	More pre-boarding measures: juxtaposed controls	114
6.3.1	Development of juxtaposed control zones	114
6.3.2	Juxtaposed controls as contiguous measures?	115
6.4	Monitoring carriers after the fact: transcript duty, gate checks and CCTV	116
6.4.1	Transcript duty	116
6.4.2	Gate checks	117
6.4.3	CCTV	118
6.4.4	Concluding remarks on monitoring mechanisms.	119
6.5	Conclusion	119

7.	The relationship between carriers and the Dutch government
7.1	Introduction	123
7.2	Implementing the carrier sanctions regime in the Netherlands	123
7.2.1	A lenient beginning	123
7.2.2	An escalating enforcement strategy	124
7.3	A new policy instrument: a gentlemen's agreement with KLM	126
7.3.1	KLM court case	126
7.3.2	Negotiating a Memorandum of Understanding	127
7.3.3	Contents of the MoU	128
7.3.4	A structure of deliberation under the MoU	130
7.3.5	Legal status	130
7.3.6	The results of the MoU	131
7.3.7	KLM's exceptional relationship with the Dutch government	135
7.3.8	Concluding remarks	138
7.4	Cooperation with other airlines	139
7.4.1	Imposing fines	139
7.4.2	Challenging the KLM MoU	142
7.4.3	A new MoU?	144
7.4.4	Consultation and cooperation at different levels?	145
7.4.5	Cooperation through sanctioning?	148
7.4.6	Differences in cooperation with air carriers in the Netherlands	151
7.5	Imposing carrier sanctions on shipping companies in the Netherlands	152
7.5.1	Differences between shipping and air transport	152
7.5.2	Cooperation with shipping companies: top level	153
7.5.3	Daily practice: street level	154
7.5.4	Concluding remarks on shipping	154
7.6	Ongoing and new discussions	155
7.6.1	Costs of re-transportation	155
7.6.2	Governments' dependence on private carriers: expulsion policy	158
7.7	Cooperation between carriers and Dutch authorities: various strategies	159
8.	The relationship between carriers and government in the UK
8.1	Introduction	163
8.2	Implementing the ICLA in the UK	163
8.2.1	Opposition by carriers	163
8.2.2	Securing the payment of fines	165
8.2.3	The Hoverspeed case	166
8.3	A developing relationship between airlines and immigration authorities	168
8.3.1	The 'home carrier' advantage?	168
8.3.2	The AGC scheme	170
8.3.3	A special position for British Airways after all?	171
8.3.4	Cooperation through the AGC scheme	172
8.3.5	The appeals process, making representations	173
8.3.6	Structured meetings and consultations	175
8.3.7	The effect of organisational and personal characteristics.	176
8.3.8	Airlines and the UK Border Agency: an ambivalent partnership	177

8.4	The carriers' liability regime for shipping	180
8.4.1	Developing a relationship with the shipping industry	181
8.4.2	The Channel Tunnel project	181
8.4.3	Clandestine passengers	183
8.4.4	The availability of AGC status for ferry companies	185
8.5	Clandestine passengers and road hauliers	187
8.5.1	Hauliers' protests against the civil penalty	187
8.5.2	A developing relationship with road hauliers?	188
8.5.3	The Civil Penalty Accreditation Scheme	192
8.6	Increasing liability for tunnel operators	192
8.6.1	Sangatte	192
8.6.2	Eurotunnel v. United Kingdom and France	196
8.6.3	Consequences of closing Sangatte: juxtaposed controls for ferry companies	197
8.7	Cooperation in the UK: multiple actors and multiple interests	198
8.7.1	General trends in the developing relationship	199
8.7.2	Different relationships with UK authorities.	199
8.7.3	Influencing the relationships	201
9.	The effect of carrier sanctions policies on the relationship between the passenger and the state and the passenger and private carriers
9.1	Introduction	205
9.2	Carrier sanctions and the relationship between the passenger and the state	206
9.2.1	Carrier sanctions and the position of the asylum seeker	206
9.2.2	The extraterritorial aspect of controls and asylum seekers	207
9.2.3	Privatisation and asylum seekers	209
9.2.4	Provisions on asylum in Dutch carriers' sanctions policy	213
9.2.5	Provisions on asylum in British carriers' liability policies	215
9.3	Changing borders and their consequences for passengers	216
9.3.1	Changing perceptions of passengers	216
9.3.2	Consequences of changing borders for passengers	218
9.4	Private carriers and individual passengers: from clients to doubtful travellers?	219
9.4.1	Carriers' risk avoidance strategies	220
9.4.2	Whose responsibility?	222
9.5	Passengers as passive victims of immigration policy?	223
9.6	Concluding remarks on the relationship with the passenger	225
10.	The consequences of involving private carriers in immigration control for the relationship between state, carriers and passengers
10.1	Introduction	227
10.2	The development of carrier sanctions policies in the Netherlands and the United Kingdom	227
10.2.1	Differences and similarities in legal design in the Netherlands and the UK	227
10.2.2	The meaning of carrier sanctions measures	229

10.3	Changing relationships: the passenger, the state and the carrier	230
10.3.1	The passenger and the state	230
10.3.2	The passenger and the carrier	232
10.4	The relationship between the state and the carrier	233
10.4.1	Regulatory strategies in the Netherlands and the UK	234
10.4.2	Effects on the principal-agent relationship	236
10.5	Final remarks	241
	Summary	245
	Samenvatting	259
	Bibliography	273
	Curriculum Vitae	291