

CONTENTS

List of Tables, Maps, and Graphs vii

Abbreviations x

Preface to the English Translation xi

Preface to the French Edition, by Robert Mandrou xvii

Foreword to the French Edition xxiii

INTRODUCTION 1

- I. Geography, Economy, and Society 2
- II. The Frontiers After 1760 10
- III. The Imperial Structures 14
- IV. The American Context 23

PART ONE: EXPANSION THROUGH FURS AND WHEAT, 1760-1815 33

1. A Tentative Rational Chronology 35
 - I. The Reversal of the Major Tendency 36
 - II. The Breakdown into Periods 42
2. The Crisis of the Conquest, 1760-1764 46
 - I. The Origins of the Crisis 46
 - II. The British Leaders of the Struggle Against Inflation 53
 - III. Monetary Policy 57Appendix: The System of Parallel Standards 71
3. The Difficulties of Reconstruction, 1765-1774 73
 - I. The Montreal-Albany Rivalry in the Fur Trade 75
 - II. Progress and Malaise in Agriculture 83
 - III. The Fisheries 89
 - IV. The Timber Industry and New Initiatives 90
 - V. The Social and Political Context 93
4. The Economy of Quebec during the American Revolution, 1775-1783 103
 - I. The Decline of Albany and the Supremacy of Montreal 105
 - II. Agriculture and the Supplying of the Army 113
 - III. Difficulties in the Fisheries and the Forest Industry 118
 - IV. Public Opinion 120

5. Post-War Problems and Orientations, 1783-1792 130
 - I. Post-War Difficulties 131
 - II. The Commercial System of the St. Lawrence 137
 - III. The Demographic Balance is Modified 145
 - IV. Social Tensions and Political Reforms 151
6. Prosperity through Furs and Wheat, 1793-1802 155
 - I. Agriculture and the Imperial Market 157
 - II. Demographic Growth 163
 - III. The Apogée of the Fur Trade 164
 - IV. A Climate of Prosperity 168
 - V. Prosperity, Social Peace, and Tendency towards Ideological Unanimity 172
7. Structural Changes, 1803-1812 175
 - I. The Staggering Rise in Prices: Role and Significance 176
 - II. The Initial Decline of the Fur Trade 181
 - III. The First Symptoms of a Crisis in Agriculture 186
 - IV. The Growth of the Timber Trade 195
 - V. Social Tensions, the Birth of Nationalism, the Political Crisis 203
8. The War of 1812 and Its Repercussions 221
 - I. Difficulties in Furs and Timber 223
 - II. Agriculture and Its Problems 226
 - III. The Role of the Army "Bills" 231
 - IV. Public Opinion during the War 234

PART TWO: THE CRISIS IN THE ECONOMY OF QUEBEC, 1816-1851 243

9. A Tentative Rational Chronology 245
10. The Reversal of the Conjoncture and the Union Crisis, 1815-1823 255
 - I. The Agricultural Crisis and the Fall in Prices 256
 - II. The Shifting of Production Centres: The Problem of Communications 272
 - III. The Demographic Conjoncture and Colonization 280
11. The Reversal of the Conjoncture and the Union Crisis, 1815-1823, Continued 299
 - I. Recovery in the Timber Industry and Depression in Shipbuilding 299

- II. The Fisheries in Difficulty 310
- III. The Creation of Credit Institutions 313
- IV. Overall Crisis in 1822: The Issue of Union 316
12. The Agricultural Crisis and the Decline of Imperial Solidarity, 1823-1836 332
 - I. Agricultural Prices 333
 - II. Quebec's Agriculture and Its Difficulties 337
 - III. The Overpopulation of the Seigneuries 353
 - IV. The Crisis of the Seignorial Régime 359
 - V. Agriculture in the Townships 365
 - VI. The Role of Upper Canada and the Issue of Canals 370
 - VII. The Decline of Imperial Solidarity 377Appendix: The Seignorial Question in Historiography 393
13. The British Régime Saved by Timber, 1823-1836 395
 - I. The Conjoncture in the British Isles 395
 - II. The Expansion of the Timber Industry 397
 - III. Shipbuilding and the Potash Industry 408
 - IV. The Overall Conjoncture 410Conclusion 415
14. The Failure of the Insurrectionary Movement, 1837-1839 420
 - I. The Conjoncture during the Revolutionary Period 422
 - II. The Failure of the Insurrections 434
 - III. Durham and His View of the Problems of Lower Canada 443
15. Quebec at the Time of the Reform, 1840-1850 448
 - I. Trends in the Agriculture of Quebec 453
 - II. Towards a Reform of the Seignorial Régime 470
 - III. Demographic Tensions and French-Canadian Emigration to the United States 475
16. Quebec at the Time of the Reform, 1840-1850, Continued 491
 - I. The Timber Industry and the Decline of Preferential Tariffs 491
 - II. Shipbuilding and Other Types of Industrial Activity 507
 - III. The Resources of the West and the End of the Old Colonial System 515
 - IV. The Resources of the West and the Revolution in Transportation 531
 - V. Political Reform 538

CONCLUSION: THE SLOWNESS OF SOCIO-ECONOMIC CHANGES AND THE ENDURING MENTALITIES OF THE "Ancien Régime" 547

- I. Changes and Challenges 547
- II. Stability and Growth in the Eighteenth Century 560
- III. The Hardening of Mentalities, 1802-1840 580
- IV. Compromises and Partial Adaptations, 1840-1860 603

Postscript, by Allan Greer 610

Notes 618

Bibliography 642

Graphs 659

Index 681