

Contents

List of Illustrations	vii
Acknowledgements	ix
1 Points of Departure	1
1.1 A Prologue in the Puppet Theatre	1
1.2 Dryden's The State of Innocence in Literary History	8
1.3 Literature and Historiography	15
1.4 Context as Method and Hypothesis	18
2 Restoration as Process, 1658–1679	25
2.1 “Drifting into Anarchy”: The Dissolution of the Protectorate	26
2.2 “Past all Humane Policy”: The Return of Charles II	28
2.3 Acts of Oblivion and Remembrance	30
2.4 Religion Restored: Resurgence and Repression in the Restoration Church	32
2.5 War, Plague, Fire, Fear: The First Restoration Crisis	34
2.6 The ‘Absolutism’ of King Charles II	37
2.7 England, France, and the Third Anglo-Dutch War	38
2.8 The ‘Modenese Marriage,’ Religion, and the Politics of Succession	43
2.9 Toward Exclusion: Shaftesbury’s Fall from Grace and Drift into Opposition	48
2.10 Crisis Abounding	53
3 Writing and Reading the Restoration:
Parameters of Literary Production and Reception	55
3.1 Restoration of the Theatre: Politics, Love, Heroism	55
3.2 Printing, Licensing, and Censorship	58
3.3 Who Were the Readers?	61
3.4 Modes of Reading, Modes of Understanding	62
3.5 Types of Typology	63
3.6 Reading for Precepts	66
3.7 Political Typology and Literary Royalism	69
3.8 Dryden’s Use of Typology	70
3.9 Royalism, Allegory, and Censorship	74
3.10 17 th -Century Reading and 21 st -Century Interpretation	76
4 Books Unbound: Milton and Dryden in the Marketplace	85
4.1 Titles	87
4.2 Designations of Genre	91
4.3 Dryden’s The State of Innocence as Libretto	98
4.4 Authors’ Names, Licensing, Epigraph, and Dedication	108
4.5 Printers and Booksellers	113

5	Authors: Seers, Servants, Fellow Writers	119
5.1	Dryden's Subtle Poetic Licensing and Theory of Inspiration	120
5.2	"Unpremeditated Verse"? Milton's Inspired Authority	127
5.3	Priest and Tempter: Dryden's Ambiguous Panegyric	133
6	Audiences: Readers Ideal, Real, and Productive	149
6.1	Dryden's Ideal Audience	149
6.2	Milton's Orphic Sense of Audience	150
6.3	Milton's Real Readers	152
6.4	Contemporary Reactions to The State of Innocence	156
6.5	Edward Ecclestone's Noah's Flood (1679)	158
7	Applications: Dryden's Political Pandaemonium	165
7.1	Dryden's Devils, Dryden's Hell	165
7.2	Dryden's Parliament of Hell	171
7.3	Batavian Infamy: Dryden's States-General of Hell	173
7.4	Shaftesburian Characters: The State of Innocence as Royalist Slander	183
8	Milton, Dryden, and the Politics of Literary Adaptation	187
	Bibliography	191
	Index	199