

Contents

PREFACE	Arthur Seldon	ix
GLOSSARY		xiv
THE AUTHOR		xvi
I Economics and Politics		1
The benevolent despot – and the end of illusion		2
Enter the political scientists		3
Ethics in political conduct		4
Voters and customers: choosing the best bargain		5
Talking and acting: academics and grocers		5
Politicians/civil servants and lesser mortals		6
II Why Government?		8
The dawn of ‘externalities’		8
‘Externalities’ and government		9
Defects of government: public goods – all or nothing		11
Changing choice between market and government		12
III Voting as a Means of Collective Control		14
The median voter theorem		14
Tendency to median ‘consensus’		18
Two-party system		20
Three-party system: polarising party wings?		22
The voter’s interest: one main issue		24
Power – or the public interest?		24
IV Bureaucracy		26
Bureaucrats and businessmen		26
Bureaucrats and elected representatives		27

Motives of bureaucrats	27
What does the bureaucrat try to maximise?	28
Improving the bureaucracy	30
Single buyer v. single seller	32
Odds with the bureaucracy	33
Bureaucrats resist 'cuts' by superior knowledge	35
Solutions: more information? – reducing bureau monopoly?	36
Introducing competition into the bureaucracy	37
(a) Competition within bureaus	37
(b) Competition between bureaus	39
Small-scale experiments desirable	39
V Logrolling	41
A British example	41
Logrolling in Labour and Conservative politics	42
Explicit or implicit logrolling: a US 'model'	43
Differential impact of political decisions	43
Explicit (open) logrolling	45
Implicit ('secret') logrolling	46
Logrolling and the median voter	47
Implicit logrolling in Britain: party manifestoes         and coalitions	48
Referenda	48
Logrolling in Britain: compromises in the Cabinet	49
Benefits of logrolling	50
Defects of logrolling	51
Radical solution: a proposal for 'reinforced majorities'	54
VI Envoi	56
A NOTE ON FURTHER READING	57

FIGURES

1. Collective Control by Voting (Police Services)	15
2. Many Voters (Police Services)	18
3. Joint Decision on Fire and Police Services	20
4. Fire and Police Services with Two Parties	21
5. The Choice of Fire and Police Services with Three Parties	23
6. Supply and Demand for Police Services	31
7. The Costs of Democratic Decision	52

A BRITISH COMMENTARY:

Party Politics and Bureaucracy in Economic Policy	59
---	----

MORRIS PERLMAN

THE AUTHOR	60
------------	----

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	60
------------------	----

I Introduction	61
-----------------------	----

II Public Finance and the Economic Approach to Politics	63
The dilemma	64
Costs, benefits, and votes	65
Inflation and the trade unions	67
Incomes policies	69

III The Economic Theory of Bureaucracy	70
Bureaucratic empires	70
The reticent bureaucrats: the information obstacle	71
Bureaucrats and managers	73
The economic approach to bureaucracy	76
More disclosure: why not as much as companies?	77
The costs of solutions	78
Summary	79

FURTHER READING	80
QUESTIONS FOR DISCUSSION	81
INDEX	84