

Dying to Know

Scientific Epistemology and Narrative in Victorian England

— GEORGE LEVINE —

The University of Chicago Press
Chicago and London

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments / ix

Introduction / Dying to Know / 1

1 / The Narrative of Scientific Epistemology / 17

2 / Dying to Know Descartes / 44

3 / Carlyle, Descartes, and Objectivity:
Lessen Thy Denominator / 66

4 / Autobiography As Epistemology: The Effacement of Self / 85

5 / My Life As a Machine:
Francis Galton, with Some Reflections on A. R. Wallace / 104

6 / Self-Effacement Revisited: Women and Scientific Autobiography / 126

7 / The Test of Truth: Our Mutual Friend / 148

8 / Daniel Deronda: A New Epistemology / 171

9 / The Cartesian Hardy: I Think, Therefore I'm Doomed / 200

10 / Daring to Know: Karl Pearson and the Romance of Science / 220

11 / The Epistemology of Science and Art: Pearson and Pater / 244

Epilogue / Objectivity and Altruism / 268

Notes / 285

Index / 317