

Contents

Vorwort	9
Foreword	12
1 Introduction	15
1.1 Main objective of research	16
1.2 Structure of the paper	19
1.3 Theoretical background and internal logical structure	20
Part I – Theoretical concept	25
2 Current ‘problems’ of migrant youth	26
2.1 Perspective of society and studies	26
2.2 Masculinity and lower performance	27
2.2.1 Hegemonic masculinity	28
2.2.2 Hegemonic masculinity and effect on school performance	29
2.2.3 Masculinity, migration and the effect on school performance	31
2.3 Migration and lower performance	33
2.3.1 Migration and language	33
2.3.2 Monolingual schools and multilingual individuals	36
2.3.3 ‘Bildungssprache’ as an additional barrier	38
2.3.4 Language as a tool for discrimination	40
2.3.5 How language-based discrimination is enacted	42
2.4 Social capital and lower performance	44
2.4.1 Social capital and its functions	45
2.4.2 Social capital and educational success	47
2.4.3 Migration and social capital	49
2.5 Stereotype threat as summary of theoretical section	51
2.5.1 Stereotype threat	51
2.5.2 Intervention of stereotype threat	54

2.5.3	‘Value creating education’	56
2.5.4	Empowerment of migrant youth and change of mind	58

Part II – Voices of Society and Research 61

3	KFN quantitative research	62
3.1	Introduction to and objectives of this research	62
3.2	Results of the research	63
3.2.1	Interpreted results of ‘experience with violence’	63
3.2.2	Interpreted results on ‘integration’	66
3.2.3	Interpreted results on ‘media consumption’	70
3.3	Conclusion on KFN’s research	71
4	IKG quantitative research	74
4.1	Introduction and objectives of this research	74
4.2	Results of the research	76
4.2.1	Interpreted results on the presence of prejudice and resentment	76
4.2.2	Interpreted results on causes for prejudice and resentment	81
4.3	Conclusion on IKG’s research	83
5	IBKM Quantitative Research	89
5.1	Introduction and objectives of this research	89
5.2	Results of the research	91
5.2.1	General results and overview	93
5.2.2	Interpreted results on masculinity	96
5.2.3	Interpreted results on discrimination and belonging	99
5.2.4	Interpreted results on diversity awareness	102
5.3	Conclusion on IBKM’s research	103
6	Conclusion on “Voices of Society”	107
7	The relationship between “Voices of Society” and “Voices of Youth”	110
7.1	The theory on subject	110
7.2	Learning environment: external factors and internal perception	113
7.3	The two realities: objective and subjective ‘reality’	114
7.4	Destructive power and instructive power	116
7.5	Conclusion on the relationship: “Voices of Youth” and “Voices of Society”	118

Part III – Voices of Youth	121
8	How “Voices of Youth” is constructed	122
8.1	General aspects on methodology	123
8.2	Problem Centered Interview	124
8.3	Distance to data and use of IBKM data	125
8.4	Interviewees and method of data collection	127
8.5	Analyzing the data	129
8.6	Analyzing considering intersectionality	136
9	Interviews with migrant youth at ‘lower’ school types	139
9.1	Interview with Ali	139
9.1.1	Ali’s voice on school	140
9.1.2	Conclusion on Ali’s voices on school	147
9.1.3	Ali’s voice on migration background	149
9.1.4	Ali’s voice on masculinity	152
9.1.5	Low inhibition threshold to violence	157
9.1.6	Ali’s voice on family and social background	158
9.1.7	Conclusion on Ali’s voice	161
9.2	Interview with Bahadir	162
9.2.1	Bahadir’s voice on school	163
9.2.2	Bahadir’s voice on migration background	167
9.2.3	Bahadir’s voice on violence	170
9.2.4	Bahadir’s voice on masculinity and the relationship to school	175
9.2.5	Bahadir’s voice on family/social background	177
9.2.6	Conclusion on Bahadir’s voice	183
9.3	Conclusion on the interviews with migrant youth at ‘lower’ school types	184
10	Interviews with migrant youth at ‘mid-level’ school types	186
10.1	Interview with Djamal	186
10.1.1	Djamal’s voice on school	186
10.1.2	Djamal’s voice on migration background	191
10.1.3	Djamal’s voice on family and social background	194
10.1.4	Djamal’s voice on masculinity	198
10.1.5	Djamal’s voice on violence	199
10.1.6	Conclusion on Djamal’s voice	200
10.2	Interview with Edon	201
10.2.1	Edon’s voice on school	202

10.2.2	Edon's voice on migration background	203
10.2.3	Edon's voice on family and social background	206
10.2.4	Edon's voice on masculinity and violence	210
10.2.5	Conclusion on Edon's voice	212
10.3	Conclusion on the interviews with migrant youth at 'mid-level' school types	213
11	Interview with migrant youth at 'higher' school types	214
11.1	Interview with Firat	214
11.1.2	Firat's voice on school	215
11.1.3	Firat's voice on violence	218
11.1.4	Firat's voice on migration background	222
11.1.5	Firat's voice on family and social background	226
11.1.6	Conclusion on Firat's voice	230
11.2	Interview with Gerek	231
11.2.1	Gerek's voice on school	231
11.2.2	Gerek's voice on family and social background	235
11.2.3	Gerek's voice on migration background	238
11.2.4	Conclusion on Gerek's voice	242
11.3	Conclusion on the interviews with migrant youth at 'higher' school types	242
12	Conclusion on "Voices of Youth"	244
Part IV – Comparisons & Conclusion		263
13	Comparisons: "Voices of Society" vs. "Voices of Youth"	264
13.1	Common aspects	266
13.2	Aspects that could not be explored by "Voices of Society"	267
13.3	Different aspects of "Voices of Society" and "Voices of Youth"	271
14	Conclusion and outlook	272
Bibliography		276
Appendix		288