

Contents

1 Introduction	1
Richard Ned Lebow
2 What Can We Know? How Do We Know?	3
Richard Ned Lebow
2.1 Introduction	3
2.2 King, Keohane, and Verba	6
2.3 Foundational Claims	7
2.4 The Product of Inquiry	10
2.5 The Purpose of Inquiry	13
2.6 The Method of Inquiry	14
2.7 The Practice of Inquiry	17
2.8 'Social' Knowledge	19
2.9 The Structure of the Book	20
Bibliography	21
3 Social Science as Case-Based Diagnostics	23
Steven Bernstein, Richard Ned Lebow, Janice Gross Stein and Steven Weber
3.1 Introduction	23
3.2 Overcoming Physics Envy	24
3.3 Forward Reasoning	29
3.4 A Forward-Looking Research Agenda	35
3.4.1 Intensified Ethnic Conflict	36
3.4.2 Nuclear Proliferation	40
3.4.3 Conclusion	46
References	48

4	If Mozart Had Died at Your Age: Psychologic Versus Statistical Inference	51
	Richard Ned Lebow
4.1	Introduction	51
4.2	A Night at the Opera	52
4.3	Imaginary Review of Manuscript 98-248	58
4.4	Author's Reply	63
	References	65
5	Texts, Paradigms and Political Change	67
	Richard Ned Lebow
5.1	Introduction	67
5.2	International Relations After the Cold War	69
5.3	Morgenthau and the Post-cold War World	76
5.4	Texts as Resources	81
5.5	Conclusions	87
6	Constructing Cause in International Relations	89
	Richard Ned Lebow
6.1	Introduction	89
6.2	Physics and Cause	94
6.3	The Concept of Cause	99
6.4	Summing Up	110
6.5	Lessons	114
	Dartmouth College, N.H., USA	117
	King's College, London, UK	121
	University of Cambridge	125
	Pembroke College	127
	About the Contributors	129
	About the Author	131
	About this Book	133