

Foreword, ix

I. THE RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE CRITIC

The Responsibilities of the Critic, 3

The Winter Critic, 19

II. THE AWAKENING FUNCTION OF ART

Yeats: The Crooked Road, 25

Primarily Language: John Crowe Ransom, 40

The Innocent Eye: Mount and Homer, 50

Essay on Rime, 53

Our First National Style, 60

Sarah Orne Jewett, 64

'That True and Human World . . .', 67

Late-Summer Wine: Wallace Stevens, 71

III. THE ARTIST AT WORK

Melville as Poet, 77

The Private Poet: Emily Dickinson, 80

William Vaughn Moody, 93

A Monument to Howells, 97

Edwin Arlington Robinson, 100

An Absolute Music: Hart Crane, 103

Louis MacNeice, 106

A New York Childhood, 112

Four American Poets: 1944, 116

Fragmentary and Whole: Williams, Aiken, Tate, 129

Music on the Fingerboard: Marshall Schacht, 132

The Alienation of the Writer, 136

IV. THE AWARENESS OF THE CRITIC

- A Classic Study of America: Tocqueville, 141
- Margaret Fuller as Critic, 145
- Moses Coit Tyler, 147
- Sherman and Huneker, 154
- Axel's Castle, 159
- Irving Babbitt, 161
- Study Out the Land: T. K. Whipple, 166
- The Scholarly Profession: Hardin Craig, 169
- Classic Models for Modern Critics, 171
- Selfless Devotion to the Arts: Paul Rosenfeld, 175

V. THE EFFORT TO REPOSSESS THE PAST

- New Standards in American Criticism: 1929, 181
- An Excited Debater, 184
- The Great Tradition: A Counterstatement, 189
- The Flowering of New England, 199
- Nathaniel Hawthorne, 209
- Thoreau: A Relaxed Chronicle, 212
- Whitman: Sanguine Confused American, 215
- Whitman: His Poetry and Prose, 218
- Henry Adams: The Real Education, 224
- Mark Twain at Work, 227
- Henry James, 230
- Van Wyck Brooks, 233
- Instances of Critical Method, 239
- An Indispensable Resource, 245

VI. THE BROKEN ARC

- Credo: 1922, 251
- Russell Cheney: 1881-1945, 254
- Phelps Putnam: 1894-1948, 256
- Theodore Spencer: 1902-1949, 277