

Contents

List of Illustrations — XI

Acknowledgements — XIV

1 Introduction — 1

- 1.1 The Pool Group: Its Formation, Financing, and Avant-garde Life-style — 4
- 1.2 A New Humane and Universal Art — 12
- 1.3 State of Research on Pool — 18

Part I Theory *The Spirit of the Quest

2 The Autonomy and the Necessity of Art — 23

- 2.1 The Autonomy of Art — 23
  - 2.1.1 Bourdieu's Theory of the Literary Field — 23
  - 2.1.2 The Literary and Artistic Field of Twentieth-Century Modernism — 26
  - 2.1.3 The Pool Members' Positioning within the Literary and Artistic Field of Modernism — 36
  - 2.1.4 Pool's Attempt to Unite Avant-garde Aesthetics and 'Pure' Art with 'Popular' Culture — 47
- 2.2 The Necessity of Art — 51
  - 2.2.1 The Idea of Art as a Human Necessity throughout History — 51
  - 2.2.2 Eibl's Poetical Animal and the Biological Need of the Human for Art — 55
  - 2.2.3 The Importance of Nature and Biology for Pool and Their Art — 59

Part II Technique and Style *Towards a Universal Language of Art

3 A Language Composed of Images and E/motion — 69

- 3.1 Montage & Metaphor and the Stream of Narrative — 69
- 3.2 Eisenstein and Cinematographic Metaphor — 70
  - 3.2.1 Eisenstein's Collective Language of Emotion — 71
  - 3.2.2 Intellectual Film: Eisenstein's Dialectical Language for the Masses — 73

- 3.3 Imagism — 77
  - 3.3.1 Ezra Pound and the Clear, Objective Image — 77
  - 3.3.2 H.D.'s Ascetic Metaphors & Mythopoetic Montages — 82
- 3.4 Collage and Photomontage – Pool's Scrapbook and Art for the Sake of It: Playing with the Language of Human Psychology, Art and Film Technique — 90
  - 3.4.1 Macpherson – Dynamic Forces of Life and Nature — 92
  - 3.4.2 H.D. – Simple Form and Abstraction — 94
  - 3.4.3 Bryher – 'Pure' Spirit and the Descent of the Gods — 96
- 3.5 Continuity: Literary Cycle of Life and Psychological-Realistic Film — 98
  - 3.5.1 Dorothy Richardson and the Literary Series — 99
  - 3.5.2 Georg Wilhelm Pabst, Film and the 'Invisible Cut' — 101
- 3.6 Light, Vision and Film Art — 113

Part III Philosophy *The Quest for a Universal Foundation of Human Life

- 4 Universal Sympathy and Universal Man: Pool's Avant-gardist New Humanism — 121
  - 4.1 The Creative Power of Dreaming: Trans/Forming Affects into Visual Images, Symbols and Narrative — 125
    - 4.1.1 Sigmund Freud's Interpretation of Dreams: Human Libidinal Wish-Fulfilment and Pleasure Instincts — 126
    - 4.1.2 Hanns Sachs' Community of Daydreams: From Subjective Wish-Fulfilment to the Social Function of Art — 130
  - 4.2 Myth Worlds and Anthropological Universalities: The Great Dynamics of Being — 136
    - 4.2.1 The Myth of Narcissus and Its Transformation into Psychoanalytic Concept and 'Aesthetic Instinct' — 140
    - 4.2.2 Life, Death, and Rebirth: The Universal Myth of Fertility and the Cult of Regeneration — 144
    - 4.2.3 Nietzsche and the Artistic Drives of Nature: Greek Tragedy as Human Psychology — 149
  - 4.3 In Love with Life and Creation: Pool's Biosophy and the Homo Artes — 153

Part IV Works of Love Pool's Humane Art or: Their Artistic Body

5 POOL Novels — 161

- 5.1 Poolreflection: The Mirror and the Self-Love of Art — 165
  - 5.1.1 The Mythical Figures of Narcissus and the Faun — 166
    - 5.1.1.1 Narcissus, the Artist and the Mirror of Self-Reflection — 166
    - 5.1.1.2 Narcissus, the Faun and the Fountain of Life — 172
    - 5.1.1.3 Mythology and Mysticism – The Faun and the Poetic Vision — 177
    - 5.1.1.4 Metamorphoses of the Great Works of Arts — 181
  - 5.1.2 Bildungsroman, Künstlerroman and Love Poetry — 187
    - 5.1.2.1 Shakespeare's Two Loves and the Tradition of Love Poetry — 187
    - 5.1.2.2 'Grand Love' and 'Human Love' – from Narcissism to Compassion — 192
    - 5.1.2.3 Poolreflection – Modernist Künstlerroman in Dialogue with Joyce and Woolf — 196
- 5.2 Gaunt Island: Cinematographic Fiction of Celtic Sensitivity — 203
  - 5.2.1 Opposing "A New Sensitivity" to Modernist Objectivity — 205
    - 5.2.1.1 Robin and the Artistic Principle of Love and Compassion — 205
    - 5.2.1.2 Geoffrey – the Poetic Principle of Divine Vision and the Sublime — 210
    - 5.2.1.3 Elmo, the Mythic Unconscious, and the Psychology of Fear — 215
    - 5.2.1.4 "Because of nerves, a face coming suddenly to the window was Grand Guignol" — 218
    - 5.2.1.5 The Corruption of Art and the Interaction of Macpherson's Figures as Agents in the Literary and Artistic Field — 223
    - 5.2.1.6 Music and Mood: The Song of Life and the Bang of Survival — 228
  - 5.2.2 "Universal Regeneration": K. Macpherson's Gaunt Island versus T.S. Eliot's The Waste Land — 235
- 5.3 Reconciling the Opposites of Dream and Reality: A Conclusion to Macpherson's Novels — 240
  - 5.3.1 Poolreflection and Gaunt Island: Macpherson's Dialectics of Art and of Human Emotion — 240
  - 5.3.2 Amore: Macpherson's Last Novel Rome 12 Noon — 244
- 5.4 The Other Fictional Works by POOL — 246
  - 5.4.1 Bryher, Civilians (1927) – "If you liked The End of St. Petersburg why not try Civilians?" — 247
  - 5.4.2 E.L. Black, [John Ellerman] Why Do They Like It? (1927) – An Adolescent Anti-Establishment Novel — 250

5.4.3 Oswald Blakeston, Extra Passenger (1929) – Another of the Cinematographic Novels — 253

6 Films by POOL Productions — 257

6.1 Film Fragments and Lost Films — 258

6.1.1 Wing Beat – Transforming the Poetics of Imagism into Film — 258

6.1.1.1 H.D.'s Unpublished Essay "Wing Beat" or the Bird-Stuffers versus the Beat of Art — 261

6.1.1.2 Advertising the Film in Close Up — 265

6.1.2 Foothills – A Joint Venture — 266

6.1.3 Monkey's Moon – Happy Animal Nature — 269

6.1.3.1 The Art of Biosophy — 269

6.1.3.2 The History and Advertisement of the Film — 276

6.1.4 I Do Like to be Beside the Seaside – A Satire on 'Intellectual' Film Criticism — 278

6.2 Borderline: Happy Dream and Violent Passions or "Two Loves I Have of Comfort and Despair" — 280

6.2.1 History and Historical Context of Borderline — 280

6.2.1.1 The History and Reception of Borderline — 280

6.2.1.2 State of Research — 283

6.2.1.3 Confusing Sensations in Black and White — 285

6.2.1.4 An International Interracial Artistic Collaboration – Pool and Paul Robeson, the Black Apollo of the Harlem Renaissance — 289

6.2.2 The Symbolic Language of Borderline — 294

6.2.2.1 Dream Symbols and Key Figures of the Imagination: The Mythic Hero Pete and the Witch — 294

6.2.2.2 Why the Use of Intertitles When Speaking in Metaphors and Continuous Association? — 303

6.2.2.3 The White Bacchantae and the Mentality of Lynching — 310

6.2.2.4 Secrets of the Souls – The Signature of G.W. Pabst — 314

6.2.2.5 The Lyre of the Black Apollo and the Wild Dance of Ecstasy – Uniting 'High' Art and Popular Entertainment — 321

6.2.2.6 Friendship and Universal Sympathy, and the Various Shades of Human Life — 331

7 POOL Architecture: The Villa KenWin — 336

7.1 Geographical Location and Its Literary Historical Context — 336

7.2 Modern Bauhaus Architecture in the Swiss Mountains — 339

7.3 KenWin – The Dialectics of Classic Modern Form and Nature — 348

7.4 Later Years through to Today (Outlook) — 355

8	Close Up – A Popular Forum for Film and Film Culture — 357
8.1.	State of Research and the Close Up Anthology — 359
8.2	Wedding the Concept of the Avant-garde Little Magazines to Film Journalism and Weimar Berlin Film Culture — 361
8.3	Macpherson's Editorial "As Is" – Vox Populi of Film Art — 370
8.3.1	"How furchtbar funny that an Englishman should have started Close Up " — 370
8.3.2	Film and Anthropological Aspects of Universality — 379
8.4	Film Journalism and Poetry: The Poetic Contributions of H.D. — 384
8.4.1	The "Projector" Poems — 385
8.4.2	"The Cinema and the Classics" – Classic Poetics for the Public — 389
8.5	The 'Purely' Experimental Literary Contributions of Gertrude Stein — 394
8.6	Dorothy Richardson's Serial Column "Continuous Performance" — 402

Part V ~ The End ~

9	Conclusion: The Disintegrating Body of Pool and the Spirit of Art — 409
----------	--

Works Cited — 417
--------------------------

Index of names — 449
-----------------------------

Index of Subjects — 455
--------------------------------