

PREFACE	9
THE KIEL GRADUATE SCHOOL »HUMAN DEVELOPMENT IN LANDSCAPES«	10
INTRODUCTION	13
Nicole Taylor, Jutta Kneisel, Marta Dal Corso, Wiebke Kirleis, Heiko Scholz, Verena Tiedtke The Third Food Revolution or Setting the Bronze Age Table: An Introduction . . .	13
1 SOCIAL ORGANISATION OF RESOURCES	19
Selina Delgado-Raack, Roberto Risch Social Change and Subsistence Production on the Iberian Peninsula during the 3rd and 2nd Millennium BCE . . . . .	21
Ginette Auxiette, Rebecca Peake, Françoise Toulemonde Food Production and Diet during the Late Bronze Age in the Upper Seine Valley (France) . . . . .	47
Penny Johnston Examining Social and Economic Aspects of Middle to Late Bronze Age Settlement in Ireland Using Archaeobotany: Case Studies from North Cork . . . .	63
Verena Tiedtke Grave, Pig and Pine – Animals and Plants at the Lusatian Urn Field of Müllrose, East Brandenburg. . . . .	75
Nicole Taylor Food for Thought: Plant Macro-Remains and Spatial Organisation. . . . .	87
Vajk Szeverényi, Anna Priskin, Péter Czukor, Andrea Torma, Anikó Tóth Subsistence, Settlement and Society in the Late Bronze Age of Southeast Hungary: A Case Study of the Fortified Settlement at Csanádpalota–Földvár . . . . .	97
2 NUTRITION AND DIET	119
Eva Rosenstock, Marcus Groß, Alisa Hujjić, Alisa Scheibner Back to Good Shape: Biological Standard of Living in the Copper and Bronze Ages and the Possible Role of Food . . . . .	121

Alisa Scheibner
Changes after the Revolution: Uniformity or Diversity in Neolithic and Bronze Age Diets? . . . . .	153

3 LAND-USE AND FOODSCAPE 179

Lisa Bringemeier, Rüdiger Krause, Astrid Stobbe and Astrid Röpke
Expansions of Bronze Age Pasture Farming and Environmental Changes in the Northern Alps (Montafon, Austria and Prättigau, Switzerland) – An Integrated Palaeoenvironmental and Archaeological Approach . . . . .	181

Manfred Rösch, Elske Fischer, Jutta Lechterbeck, Angelika Kleinmann, Marion Sillmann, Gegeensuvd Tserendorj, Lucia Wick
Bronze Age Land Use and Food Production in Southwest Germany in Light of Botanical On-Site and Off-Site Data. . . . .	201

Yvonne F. van Amerongen
Fish in Bronze Age West Frisia: A Proxy for the Reconstruction of Environment and Activity . . . . .	221

Susanne Jahns
Bronze Age Settlements Reflected in Pollen Diagrams from Brandenburg, Eastern Germany. . . . .	237

Heiko Scholz
Early Bronze Age Hoard Finds from the Havel Area in Light of the Pollen Profile of Lake Sacrow. . . . .	249

Jutta Kneisel
Bronze Age Settlements Reflected in the Material Culture of the Surroundings of Lake Sacrow. . . . .	255

4 THE THIRD FOOD REVOLUTION? A CONCLUSION 273

Jutta Kneisel, Marta Dal Corso, Wiebke Kirleis, Nicole Taylor, Verena Tiedtke
The Third Food Revolution? Common Trends in Economic and Subsistence Strategies in Bronze Age Europe. . . . .	275