

Contents

Acknowledgements	7
Introduction	9
1 Yellowface and the Oriental Body	39
1.1 The Oriental on the Stage and on the Screen	44
1.2 Biology and the Racial Makeup of the Oriental Body	57
1.3 Racial Types: Yellowface Performances and the Hollywood System	74
1.3.1 “The Man of a Thousand Faces”: Lon Chaney	81
1.3.2 “No more Chinese, Myrna”: Myrna Loy	89
1.3.3 “Chinese atmosphere”: Supporting Roles, Bit Parts, and Extras	99
1.4 Conclusion	104
2 Chinatown and the Visuality of Space and Race	107
2.1 Chinatown as Urban Space	111
2.2 Chinatown as Tourist Space	139
2.2.1 Seeing Chinatown	140
2.2.2 The Tourist Gaze, Staged Authenticity, and the Cinematic Dispositif	150
2.2.3 Filming Chinatown: H. J. Lewis and the Figuration of the Chinatown Guide	156
2.2.4 Chinatown Films	165
2.3 Conclusion	191
3 Becoming White/Becoming Yellow: Americanization, Assimilation, and the ‘Oriental Problem’	195
3.1.1 Chinese American Activism and Americanization	201
3.1.2 The Americanized Generation and the ‘Chinese Flapper’ ..	213
3.2 The ‘Oriental Problem,’ Nativism, and the Question of Race	236
3.3 Conclusion	271

4	Illegal Immigrants and Alien Subjects	273
4.1	Patrolling Boundaries: Creating the Illegal Chinese Immigrant ...	277
4.1.1	Visibility at the Border: Territory, Surveillance, and the Illegal Chinese Immigrant	283
4.1.2	“Constant Warfare”: Fighting Illegal Chinese Immigration	294
4.2	Foreigners-Within: Chinese American Aliens	320
4.3	Conclusion	345
5	Conclusion	348
	Filmography	353
	Archives	358
	Bibliography	359
	Periodicals	359
	Primary Sources	364
	Secondary Sources	367
	Index	387
	Subjects	387
	Names	396