

Contents

List of figures and tables	vii
List of contributors	ix
Introduction: what's wrong with Keynesian economic theory? Steven Kates	1
1 The Keynesian liquidity trap: an Austrian critique Peter Boettke and Patrick Newman	11
2 What the entrepreneurial problem reveals about Keynesian macroeconomics Per L. Bylund	26
3 A critique of two key concepts in Keynesian textbooks Tim Congdon	44
4 The misdirection of Keynesian aggregates for understanding monetary and cyclical processes Richard M. Ebeling	77
5 Cycles and slumps in an overly aggregated theoretical framework Roger W. Garrison	92
6 The problems with Keynesianism: a view from Austrian capital theory Steven Horwitz	106
7 The dangers of Keynesian economics Steven Kates	123
8 The problem of Keynesian aggregation Arnold Kling	150
9 What's wrong with Keynesian economists? Arthur B. Laffer	165
10 Capital, saving and employment George Reisman	183

11	What's wrong with Keynesian economics? David Simpson	201
12	Move over Keynes: replacing Keynesianism with a better model Mark Skousen	218
13	The conclusive fault line in Keynesian economics Peter Smith	235
	Selected bibliography	251
	Index	259