

Contents

Introduction Gary Geddes	vii
For an Independent Quebec René Lévesque	1
Canada is a Poem Robert Kroetsch	13
In Praise of Imprecision Naim Kattan Translated by William J. Guthrie	17
Listen. Just Listen Margaret Laurence	20
Batoche. May 12, 1885 Rudy Wiebe	26
Thoughts that Try to Go Somewhere, but Stop Short: Canadian Style Leonard Peterson	31
Canada as a Series of Contradictions Herschel Hardin	40
The Sweet Gift of Governing Oneself, or True Versus False Federalism George Woodcock	60
The French Fact in Alberta Louis Desrochers	67
O Canada! Robin Skelton	71
The West Ken Mitchell	75
Who Will Tell the Québécois about Canada? Richard Rohmer	80
A Perspective on Canadian Federalism after the Quebec Election of 1976 John E. Trent	84
The City of Intellect Found Wanting Rosemary Sullivan	100
The Vanishing Nation Mel Hurtig	103
Two-Headed Poems Margaret Atwood	113
Canada: The One and the Many W.L. Morton	124
Counting the Cost Abraham Rotstein	130
The North American Triangle Mel Watkins	133
The Quebec Problem Walter Gordon	139
René Lévesque and the Sovereign State of Atlantica Silver Donald Cameron	143
Hangin' 'Er Tough Alden Nowlan	156

The Overwhelming Question	Reshard Gool	162
Civil War and Other Alternatives	Harold Horwood	166
The First Obligation	Lionel Groulx	172
Occupied Country	André Laurendeau Translated by Philip Stratford	176
An Ill-Fitting Imported Ideology Won't Suit Canada	Roger Lemelin	180
A Note to the Editor	Gabrielle Roy	185
" . . . A Difficult Country, and Our Home"	Joyce Marshall	186
Bringing 1867 Up To Date	Eric Kierans	192
Our Nation's Reach Exceeds Its Grasp	Bruce Hutchison	202
A Handful of Earth: To René Lévesque	Al Purdy	210
Contributors and Credits		213