

Contents

Preface	7
Foreword	12

The First Night: How Do Stories Heal People?

1. The Meaning of Commitment	17
2. The Hanshin Earthquake and Emotional Trauma	25
3. Words or Images?	30
4. Answering Logically vs. Answering Compassionately	35
5. Things That Surprised Me after Becoming a Novelist	38
6. The Japanese Individual and the Underlying Threads of History	45
7. The Depth of Linguistic Differences	48
8. Things Are Starting to Heat Up	54
9. Self-Healing and Novels	61
10. Making Stories, Living Stories	67
11. Marriage and 'Well-digging'	70
12. Married Couples and Other People	77

The Second Night: Dredging Up the Unconscious – Body and Mind

13. Stories and the Body	85
14. The Relationship between a Work and Its Author	94
15. Stories as a Link between People	99
16. Beyond Cause and Effect	103
17. Curing and Living	112
18. Individuality and Universality	117
19. Religion and Psychotherapy	122
20. The Khalkhyn Gol Incident	126
21. Violence and Expression	133
22. Violence in Japanese Society	137
23. Pain and Nature	142
24. Where Are We Headed?	145
Afterword	150