
Contents

Introduction: Opening American Thought 1

James T. Kloppenberg

PART I | FRAMES

1. What Was the American Enlightenment? 19

Caroline Winterer

2. The “Woman Question” in the Age of Democracy: From Movement History to Problem History 37

Leslie Butler

3. “We the People of Color”: Colored Cosmopolitanism and the Borders of Race 57

Nico Slate

4. Curating the Black Atlantic 76

Jonathan Scott Holloway

PART II | JUSTICE

5. The Sins of Slaves and the Slaves of Sin: Toward a History of Moral Agency 97

Margaret Abruzzo

6. Nationalism and Cosmopolitan Humanity in Mid-Nineteenth-Century American Political Science 115

Duncan Kelly

7. The Political Origins of Global Justice 133

Samuel Moyn

PART III | PHILOSOPHY

8. Unstiffening Theory: The Italian Magic Pragmatists and William James 155
Francesca Bordogna
9. The Longing for Wisdom in Twentieth-Century US Thought 182
Jennifer Ratner-Rosenhagen
10. Pain, Analytical Philosophy, and American Intellectual History 202
Joel Isaac
11. On Lying: Writing Philosophical History after the Enlightenment and after Arendt 218
Sophia Rosenfeld

PART IV | SECULARIZATION

12. Science and Religion in Postwar America 237
Andrew Jewett
13. Religion within the Bounds of Democracy Alone: Habermas, Rawls, and the Transatlantic Debate over Public Reason 257
Peter E. Gordon
14. Christianity and Its American Fate: Where History Interrogates
Secularization Theory 280
David A. Hollinger

PART V | METHOD

15. Paths in the Social History of Ideas 307
Daniel T. Rodgers
16. Toward a Free-Range Intellectual History 324
Sarah E. Igo
17. New Directions, Then and Now 343
Angus Burgin

AFTERWORD 365

Michael O'Brien

CONTRIBUTORS 373

INDEX 377