

Contents

Acknowledgements	page ix
Introduction	xi
Chronology	xxxvii
Note on the text and translation	xl
Suggestions for further reading	xliii
Abbreviations	xlvi
Addresses to the German Nation	I
Foreword	3
1. Preliminary remarks and overview	9
2. On the nature of the new education in general	22
3. Description of the new education – continued	35
4. The principal difference between the Germans and other peoples of Teutonic descent	47
5. Consequences of the difference that has been advanced	60
6. Exposition of German characteristics in history	73
7. A yet deeper understanding of the originality and Germanness of a people	85
8. What a people is in the higher sense of the word and what is love of fatherland	100
9. At what point existing in reality the new national education of the Germans will begin	115
10. Towards a more exact definition of the German national education	128
11. On whom the execution of this plan of education will devolve	141

Contents

---

12. On the means of maintaining ourselves until we achieve our principal purpose	154
13. Continuation of the reflections already begun	166
14. Conclusion of the whole	183
Glossary	197
Index	199