

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Page
INTRODUCTION: EMPIRE AND IDEOLOGY: AESTHETICS AND DESIGN IN EARLY MODERN THEATER OF SPAIN AND THE NEW WORLD	13
Political Playwrighting	20
Empire and Theater	38
CHAPTER ONE. AGRICULTURE, ECONOMICS, AND REVOLT IN LOPE'S FUENTE OVEJUNA	58
Economic Imperialism and the International Wool Trade	66
Poetizing Violence and Generating Nationalism	87
CHAPTER TWO. FALLING STARS: KINGSHIP AND THE LAW IN RUIZ DE ALARCÓN'S EL DUEÑO DE LAS ESTRELLAS	101
Public Opinion and Privanza	108
The Rise of the Count-Duke of Olivares and Discourses on Privanza	123
Setting Legal Precedents	134
Suicide as Symbolic Resolution	155
CHAPTER THREE. 'A ROSE BY ANY OTHER NAME:' POLITICS AND DYNASTIC SUCCESS(IONS) IN CALDERÓN'S LOA TO LA PÚRPURA DE LA ROSA .	159
Calderón, Early Opera, and the Spanish Imperial Agenda	163
Visual History in La púrpura de la rosa	182
CHAPTER FOUR. NARCISSISTIC IMPERIALISM: RELIGION AND RECONQUEST IN SOR JUANA'S EL DIVINO NARCISO	202
Transatlantic Ideology in Sor Juana's loa	207
An (Un)Orthodox loa : Counter Reformation Cultures, Neo-Scholasticism, and State Control	214

	Page
The Christianization of Indian Customs: Cross Threading American and European Belief Systems	227
El Divino Narciso and the Counter Reformation Context: Mythological Histories and Theological Debates	235
CONCLUSION: EMERGING PATTERNS: WRITERS AND THE IMPERIAL STATE	256
WORKS CITED	263
INDEX	277