

Contents

| | |
|----------|---|
| Prologue | 1 |
|----------|---|

I. INTRODUCTION: THE POET AND THE LAW

| | |
|---|----|
| 1. Unacknowledged Legislators | 7 |
| Shelley's Defence of Poetry | 9 |
| Plato and Rich: The Nomos and the honeyed Muse | 20 |
| The poet's authority: Moses or Orpheus? | 25 |
| 2. The Poet as Lawgiver in Post-Revolutionary France | 31 |
| The work of Paul Bénichou (1908–2001) | 32 |
| Beyond Bénichou | 44 |

II. AVANT LE DÉLUGE (1750–1789)

| | |
|--|----|
| 3. Towards a Happy Revolution | 55 |
| The death of poetry? | 58 |
| Drama in the theatre: Rousseau, Diderot, Beaumarchais, Mercier | 61 |
| The poet as magistrate | 73 |
| The rebirth of poetry? | 77 |

III. APRÈS LE DÉLUGE: CHATEAUBRIAND'S MELANCHOLY

| | |
|--|-----|
| 4. Revolution, Religion, and Poetry | 93 |
| Essai sur les révolutions (1797) | 100 |
| Génie du christianisme (1802) | 107 |
| Atala (1801) and René (1802) | 122 |
| 5. Politics and Writing | 131 |
| The poet as politician | 131 |
| An unacknowledged legislator | 140 |
| The solitary walker and the je ne sais quoi | 146 |

IV. APRÈS LE DÉLUGE: STAËL'S ENTHUSIASM

| | |
|--|-----|
| 6. The Woman Writer as Lawgiver | 157 |
| Women and literature: The Lettres sur Rousseau (1788) | 160 |

| | |
|--|-----|
| The woman writer as political mediator: The early Réflexions (1793–1795) | 165 |
| Moralist or legislator? De l'influence des passions sur le bonheur (1796) | 171 |
| The writer and the republic: Des circonstances actuelles (1798) | 176 |
| 7. Literature and Progress: 'De la littérature' (1800) | 183 |
| Progress and freedom: The 'Discours préliminaire' | 184 |
| Progress and philosophy: A new literature of ideas for a new republic | 189 |
| Progress and poetry: The union of north and south | 196 |
| 8. The Lawgiver as Novelist: 'Delphine' (1802) | 205 |
| Staël and the novel | 205 |
| Freedom of opinion, freedom from opinion | 208 |
| The freedom of women and the literature of enthusiasm | 214 |
| 9. The Lawgiver as Poet and Outlaw: 'Corinne ou L'Italie' (1807) | 223 |
| Corinne the poet: A new enthusiasm | 223 |
| North and South: A new geography of the soul | 228 |
| A tale of two melancholies | 233 |
| Poetry and landscape | 237 |
| Enthusiasm and the religion of poetry | 242 |
| Verse or prose? | 247 |
| Poetry and the enthusiasm of love | 250 |
| 10. The Lawgiver as Poet: 'De l'Allemagne' (1810/1813) | 255 |
| Literature, religion, and progress: Towards a new map of Europe | 256 |
| Poetry and the future of literature: Germany versus France | 263 |
| Poetry and idealism: Kant and Staël versus Plato and Winckelmann | 271 |
| Enthusiasm and religion: Poetry and politics | 277 |
| Staël the post-Romantic, the post-Christian | 283 |
| 11. Poetry as Self-Legislation | 285 |
| Writers as exiles: Dix années d'exil | 285 |
| Public freedom and private independence | 287 |
| Heaven on earth: A pact of souls | 291 |
| V. LEFT OR RIGHT? | |
| 12. Poetry after the Revolution | 299 |
| VI. LAMARTINE'S MURMUR: POETRY, POLITICS, AND PRAYER | |
| 13. The Poet as Lawgiver | 323 |
| God's instrument | 326 |

| | |
|---|-----|
| The problem of human language | 334 |
| The poet at work | 343 |
| 14. The Poet as Politician | 351 |
| The Christopher Columbus of Liberty | 351 |
| The new Homer | 361 |
| 15. The Poet at Prayer | 371 |
| Poetry as murmur | 371 |
| Poetry as mystery | 380 |
| VII. HUGO'S INTIMACY: THE PRIVATE, THE PUBLIC, AND THE VISIONARY | |
| 16. Private or Public? | 389 |
| A poem of one's own (1818–1828) | 392 |
| A public dramatist (1827–1843) | 397 |
| A public poet? (1821–1829) | 404 |
| A private poet? (1830 and after) | 412 |
| 17. Olympio | 421 |
| Towards Olympio (1831–1840) | 421 |
| 'Le Poème de l'Homme' | 430 |
| 18. The Poet as Lawgiver and Visionary | 437 |
| The poet as public arbiter | 438 |
| The poet as seer and ghost | 445 |
| 19. The Poet as Genius and Promontory | 473 |
| The Magi | 473 |
| Shakespeare and company | 475 |
| The poet as cosmic historian | 483 |
| The poet as promontory | 492 |
| Conclusion | 500 |
| VIII. VIGNY'S ELIXIR: PITY, ENMITY, AND POSTERITY | |
| 20. A Purpose for Sadness: 'Poèmes antiques et modernes' (1826) | 507 |
| 21. Poets and Their Enemies | 523 |
| Stello (1832) | 523 |
| Chatterton (1834–1835) | 534 |
| De Mademoiselle Sédaine et de la propriété littéraire (1841) | 541 |

22. Words of Honour: 'Les Destinées: Poèmes philosophiques'
(1838–1864) 549
23. Afterlives: 'Daphné' and the Poetry of the Future 561

IX. CONCLUSION: BEYOND MELANCHOLY,
OR A MINISTRY OF POETS

24. 1789 and After 573
25. 14 July 1889 587
- Epilogue 597
- Bibliography* 601
- Index* 623