

CONTENTS

1	Editors' Introduction	1
	Patryk Babiracki and Austin Jersild
Part I	The Second World Under Stalin	17
2	Coming to Terms with Europe: Konstantin Simonov and Oles' Honchar's Literary Conquest of East Central Europe at the End of World War II	19
	Lars Peder Haga
3	The Stalin Cult and the Construction of the Second World in Hungary in the Early Cold War Years	49
	Balázs Apor
Part II	Post-Stalinist Entanglements in the Second World	77
4	Two Stairways to Socialism: Soviet Youth Activists in Polish Spaces, 1957–1964	79
	Patryk Babiracki xiii

5	Staging for the End of History: Avant-garde Visions at the Beginning and the End of Communism in Eastern Europe	107
	David Crowley
Part III Second World Cultures		133
6	Ties That Bind, Ties That Divide: Second World Cultural Exchange at the Grassroots	135
	Kyrill Kunakhovich
7	Soviet Cinematic Internationalism and Socialist Film Making, 1955–1972	161
	Marsha Siefert
Part IV Internationalism and the Iron Curtain		195
8	Motocross Mayhem: Racing as Transnational Phenomenon in Socialist Czechoslovakia	197
	Mark Keck-Szajbel
9	Friends, “Potential Friends,” and Enemies: Reimagining Soviet Relations to the First, Second, and Third Worlds at the Moscow 1957 Youth Festival	219
	Pia Koivunen
Part V Between the Second and the Third Worlds		249
10	Peace and Progress: Building Indo-Soviet Friendship	251
	Jeremiah Wishon

11 Red China in Central Europe: Creating and Deploying Representations of an Ally in Poland and the GDR	273
David G. Tompkins
12 Sino-Soviet Rivalry in Guinea-Conakry, 1956–1965: The Second World in the Third World	303
Austin Jersild
13 Afterword: Promises and Paradoxes of Socialist Internationalism (Personal and Historical Reflections)	327
Alfred Rieber
Index	345