

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Preface	7
List of Title Abbreviations	12
Grammatical Symbols	13
I. Methods of Analysis.	15
1.1. The purpose of the study	15
1.2. The period under investigation.	15
1.3. The use of dialogue in literary texts	17
1.4. Other technical accommodations seems to historical analysis	19
1.5. The relevance of recent “transform” techniques	22
1.6. A summary of basic assumptions.	24
1.7. A preview of the investigation	24
II. Substantive Types	26
2.1. The definition of utterance units	26
2.2. The order of analysis	27
2.3. The use of substitution frames	27
2.4. Subject expressions	27
2.5. Predicate expressions	28
2.6. Number agreement in S-P expressions	28
2.7. Substantives and substantive phrases	30
2.8. Nouns and noun-headed phrases	30
2.9. The articles	30
2.10. Grammatical gender	31
2.11. The plural of the ART’s	31
2.12. Adjectives.	31
2.13. Phrase-internal ADJ’s	32
2.14. Phrase-initial ADJ’s	32
2.15. The distinction between ADJ types	33
2.16. Anomalous patterns of ADJ expansion	33
2.17. Number expansion	34
2.18. The ranking of expansion items	34

TABLE OF CONTENTS

2.19. An irregular expansion pattern.	36
2.20. The replacives	36
2.21. The indefinite replacives	37
2.22. The definite replacives	37
2.23. Expansion of R's.	38
2.24. The person indicators.	38
2.25. The expansion of PI's	39
III. Noun Case	40
3.1. The analysis of P expressions	40
3.2. The unexpanded P's	40
3.3. The SB-V tie	40
3.4. The V ties with N's, PR's, and IR's.	40
3.5. The V ties with PI's	42
3.6. The expansions of P	43
3.7. ADJ expansion	44
3.8. Uninflected P-ADJ's	44
3.9. Adverb expansion	44
3.10. V- an expansion	46
3.11. V- ende expansion	46
3.12. V- ed expansion	47
3.13. SB expansion	47
3.14. The tagmemic approach	48
3.15. The O expansions	49
3.16. The "equational" frame.	50
3.17. "Non-equivalent" equational utterances	51
3.18. Word order in S-P constructions.	51
3.19. Discontinuous word-orders	51
3.20. Reversed word orders.	52
3.21. Free and restricted word order.	54
3.22. Word order and N case.	55
IV. Morphotactics of the Nouns	56
4.1. Invariant part of speech forms	56
4.2. Inflectional and derivational expansion	56
4.3. N bases, pre-bases, post-bases	57
4.4. PreB morphs	58
4.5. PreB series	59
4.6. Base allomorph types.	59
4.7. PoB morph series	60
4.8. Homonymous B and PoB morphs	60
4.9. Compound B's	61

TABLE OF CONTENTS

4.10. Allomorphic combinatory B forms	62
V. Noun Suffixes	63
5.1. The N suffixes	63
5.2. The grammatical categories of N's	63
5.3. Inflectional "skewness"	64
5.4. Unequivocal N suffixes	65
5.5. The incidence of inflectional suffixes	66
5.6. The resolution of suffix ambiguity	67
5.7. Case signals	67
5.8. Case-ambiguous forms	68
5.9. Gender signals.	70
5.10. Gender-ambiguous signals.	70
5.11. Number signals	71
5.12. Number-ambiguous forms.	71
5.13. The indeclinable forms	73
5.14. The "uncovered" N's	73
5.15. Summary of the categorical signals	73
5.16. Categorical syncretism	75
VI. The Noun Inflectional Series	77
6.1. Principal and minor inflectional series	77
6.2. The distinctions among N series	77
6.3. Sub-classes of the N series	77
6.4. The principal series.	78
6.5. The minor series	79
6.6. Inflectional instability.	81
6.7. The spread of N -(e)	81
6.8. Spread of Third Series suffixes	81
6.9. Spread of Second Series suffixes	82
6.10. Spread of First Series suffixes	82
6.11. Spread of First Minor Series suffixes	83
6.12. Spread of Second Minor Series suffixes	83
6.13. Spread of Third Minor Series suffixes.	83
6.14. The incidence of N -(e) spread	83
6.15. New N formations	84
6.16. The fluctuations of N -(an/N -(e) in new N's	84
6.17. Conservation versus variation	85
VII. Conclusion	86
Bibliography	88