

CONTENTS

Foreword	ix
Preface	xiii
Introduction: Masters of Happiness	1
1. Is Everybody Hanging Out Without Me? Comparing Ourselves to Others and the Importance of Being "Liked"	16
2. The Professionalization of Facebook: (And Why Everyone Should Keep Their Opinions to Themselves)	43
3. My Name Is My Brand and My Brand Is Happiness!	63
4. The Selfie Generation: Why Social Media Is More of a "Girl Thing"	81
5. Performing for God: Religion On (and Off) Social Media	104
6. Virtual Playgrounds: The Rise of Yik Yak, the Joys of Snapchat, and Why Anonymity Is Just So Liberating	124

7. An Acceptable Level of Meanness: The Bullies, the Bullied, and the Problem of Vulnerability	143
8. So You Wanna Make That Facebook Official?	172
9. The Ethics of Sexting: Tinder, Dating, and the Promise of Mutually Assured Destruction	192
10. My Smartphone and Me: A Love-Hate Relationship	209
11. Taking a Timeout from the Timeline: Students Who Quit Social Media and Why	231
Conclusion: Virtues for a Generation of Social Media Pioneers	250
Taking Control of Our Smartphones: How Student Affairs Professionals, Faculty, and Parents Can Help Young Adults Feel Empowered with Respect to Social Media and Their Devices	269
Acknowledgments	283
Appendix: Methodology	285
Notes	301
Index	333