

Contents

Notes on contributors	vii
Introduction Terry Atkinson and Guy Claxton	1
Part 1: Perspectives on intuition in professional learning and practice	13
1 Intuition and the crisis in teacher professionalism John Furlong	15
2 The anatomy of intuition Guy Claxton	32
3 Trusting your own judgement (or allowing yourself to eat the pudding) Lucy Atkinson	53
Part 2: Intuition and initial teacher education	67
4 Learning to teach: intuitive skills and reasoned objectivity Terry Atkinson	69
5 Awareness and intuition: how student teachers read their own lessons Peter John	84
6 The role of intuition in mentoring and supporting beginning teachers Elisabeth Lazarus	107
7 Elaborated intuition and task-based English language teacher education Arlene Gilpin and Gerald Clibbon	122

Part 3: Intuition and continuing professional development	135
8 The development of professional intuition Agnes McMahon	137
9 The formal and the intuitive in science and medicine Richard Brawn	149
10 Complex decision making in the classroom: the teacher as an intuitive practitioner Laurinda Brown and Alf Coles	165
11 Developing intuition through management education Gill Gregory	182
Part 4: Intuition and assessment	197
12 Assessment and intuition Patricia Broadfoot	199
13 Measurement, judgement, criteria and expertise: intuition in assessment from three different subject perspectives Roger Curtis, Paul Weeden and Jan Winter	220
14 Intuition, culture and the development of academic literacy David Johnson	239
Part 5: The Intuitive Practitioner: a critical overview	253
15 The Intuitive Practitioner : a critical overview Michael Eraut	255
Index	269