

Contents

List of illustrations	ix
Acknowledgements	xi
List of contributors	xii
Abbreviations	xii
1 Mainstream parties, the populist radical right, and the (alleged) lack of a restrictive and assimilationist alternative	1
PONTUS ODMALM AND EVE HEPBURN
2 The European mainstream and the populist radical right: The British case	28
REBECCA PARTOS
3 Conflict and co-operation among the Danish mainstream as a condition for adaptation to the populist radical right	49
FLEMMING JUUL CHRISTIANSEN
4 Immigration, integration and the Finns Party: Issue ownership by coincidence or by stealth?	71
MIKKO KUISMA AND MIKAEL NYGÅRD
5 The French mainstream and the Front National's electoral fortunes	90
JOÃO CARVALHO
6 Accommodating the Dutch populist radical right in a multi-party system: Success or failure?	108
MARIJN VAN KLINGEREN, ANDREJ ZASLOVE AND BERTJAN VERBEEK
7 Sweden: From deviant case to populist radical right hotbed?	130
ANDERS WIDFELDT

viii Contents

8	Concluding remarks	153
	PONTUS ODMALM

	Index	160
--	--------------	-----