

Contents

1	Fleeting Crime: The Raw Material for Crime
	Analysis and Reduction	1
1.1	Introduction	1
1.2	Too Many Moving Parts?	2
1.3	The Raw Material of Crime Modelling	6
1.4	How Can Crime Be Reduced?	8
2	Crime Concentration and Its Prevention	17
2.1	Introduction	17
2.2	Reasons for Repeats	21
2.3	Right Place, Right Time, Right People and Right Response	24
	2.3.1 History of Repeats: Based Crime Prevention	24
	2.3.2 Current Developments: Predictive Policing	25
3	Predicting Victimization Incidence	29
3.1	Introduction	29
3.2	Practice and Theory, and Those in the Middle	30
3.3	Rates, Risks and Regrets	30
3.4	The Data: British Crime Survey and UK Census	31
3.5	Modelling Crime Counts	34
3.6	What Affects Victimization Frequency?	37
3.7	Models and Expectations	40
4	Modelling as a Prevention Aid	45
4.1	Introduction	45
4.2	Hypothetical Individuals and Their Households	46
4.3	Selected Areas	47

4.4	Population Subgroup- and Context-Specific Crime Predictions	48
4.5	Does Crime Differ by Household Type and Individual Profile?.....	52
4.6	How Does Area Affect Household and Personal Crime?	55
4.7	How Does Household Type and Individual Profile Affect Repeat Victimization?	57
4.8	How Does Area Type Affect Repeat Victimization?	59
5	Conclusions: What Next?	63
	Appendix	65
	References	71
	Index	77