

THE ORIENT AND THE YOUNG ROMANTICS

ANDREW WARREN

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Acknowledgments	page vi
Introduction: From solipsism to Orientalism	i
1 “The Book of Fate” and “The Vice of the East”: Robert Southey’s Thalaba the Destroyer (1801) and High Romantic Orientalism	46
Interchapter I: Montesquieu: Nature and the Oriental Despot	88
2 Byron’s Lament: Lara (1814) and the specter of Orientalism	95
3 The spirit of Oriental solitude: Shelley’s Alastor (1816) and Epipsychidion (1821)	131
Interchapter II: Rousseau’s foreigners	174
4 “The great sandy desert of Politics”: The Orient and solitude in The Revolt of Islam (1818)	185
5 “Unperplexing bliss”: The Orient in Keats’s Poetics	231
Select bibliography	262
Index	274