

TABLE OF CONTENTS

List of Illustrations xi

Acknowledgements xv

Introduction 1

1 Clothes of Carnival: Personal Puppeteering and Role Play 15

Precursors: Atellan farce 19

Pulchinello and Punch 23

Commedia clowns and the mind-body problem 25

Representations of the commedia dell'arte in art 29

2 A Soul in Control: The Art of the Automaton 31

Early automata 32

Pygmalion and Pygmalionism 34

Vaucanson 36

The art of automata 41

The chess-playing Turk 44

The end of a fantasy, the beginning of a contrivance 47

3 Dark Doubles: Dolls as a Solution to the Fallible Body 51

A world with no puppet master: Jean Paul 53

Kleist's Über das Marionettentheatre and E. T. A. Hoffmann's Sandman 54

Maeterlinck, Craig and the Über-marionette 60

Rilke and the puppet 63

4 Between Torture and Transcendence: The Doll in Art 67

Bellmer: The terror of art 71

Cindy Sherman and the evaporated self 75

The vulnerability of fake flesh: The hyperrealist dolls of Jinks, Mueck and Piccinini 79

5 A Model Subject: The Window Dummy, the Fashion Doll and the Double 89

Fashion dolls 90
 The birth of the mannequin 96
 Early modern modeling 98
 The doll standard and the modern body 101
 Barbie, beauty, queer 102

6 Extreme Hellene: Sport, Superheroes and the Modern Übermensch 107

From the "normal" body to the sport body 108
 Male doll culture and superheroes 111
 Pumping iron and building a body (a)part 113
 Hypermasculine queer 116
 The anatomic shell and death: Bodybuilding and AIDS 118

7 Genetically Baroque Beings: Cybergender, Transexuality and Natrificality 119

Plastic surgery 120
 Performing monstrosities: Orlan 124
 Porn, sex, dolls and the natrifical 128
 No need for life: RealDolls are here 131
 Living dolls 133
 The incorporated doll and the internalized fetish 136

8 Future Postscript: Shells and Ghosts, Bodies and Souls 139

Conclusion: Between Beauty and Terror 147

Notes 151
 Bibliography 173
 Index 185