

Contents

Introduction:	The Assessment of Interests
	W. Bruce Walsh and Samuel H. Osipow		vii
Chapter 1	Strong Vocational Interest Blank / Strong-Campbell Interest Inventory
	Jo-Ida C. Hansen		1
	Materials for the SVIB-SCII	1
	Uses of the Strong	7
	Administering the Strong Inventory	8
	Historical Background	8
	The 1985 Version of the SVIB-SCII	10
	Interpretation	26
	Cross-Cultural Use of the Strong	26
	Summary	27
Chapter 2	Advances in the Kuder Occupational Interest Survey
	Donald G. Zytowski and Frederic Kuder		31
	The KOIS as an Advance	31
	The 1985 Report Form	34
	Vocational Interest Estimates	40
	Person-Matching	48
	Summary	52

Chapter 3	The Self-Directed Search John L. Holland and Jack R. Rayman	55
	The SDS as an Innovation 55
	Origin and Development 59
	Revisions, Adaptations, and Accessory Materials 66
	Applications and Unexpected Outcomes 68
	Future Research, Development, and Theory 72
 Chapter 4	 New Approaches to the Assessment of Interests Fred H. Borgen	 83
	Introduction 83
	Timelines of Innovation: The Big Three and Beyond 89
	Newer Interest Inventories: Beyond the Big Three 92
	Issues in Interest Assessment 103
	Computers and the Future of Interest Assessment 114
	A Not Too Short List of Options for Future Test Developers 119
 Chapter 5	 Special Groups and the Beneficial Use of Vocational Interest Inventories Linda S. Gottfredson	 127
	Recent Concerns About Test Usage and Special Groups 127
	Analysis and Comparison of Risk Factors in Career Choice 142
	Career Choice Problems and Their Diagnosis 165
	Some Principles of Beneficial Test Usage 180
	Conclusion 188
 Author Index	 199
 Subject Index	 205	