

Contents

List of Illustrations	ix
Introduction	1
Lisa C. Nevett
Part 1. Disciplinary Context
Chapter 1 A Theoretical or Atheoretical Greek Archaeology? The Last Twenty-Five Years	15
David L. Stone
Chapter 2 Haus und Stadt im klassischen Griechenland: Its Theoretical Impact Twenty-Five Years On	40
Bradley A. Ault
Chapter 3 Classical Archaeology Comes of Age: Supplying Theory to Other World Archaeologies	51
David Small
Part 2. Artifacts
Chapter 4 The Material Entanglements of Writing Things Down	71
James Whitley
Chapter 5 Chaîne Opératoire: Moving from Theory to Praxis in the Study of Attic Geometric Pottery	104
Ioannis Smyrnaiois
Chapter 6 Reception, Intention, and Attic Vases	124
Kathleen M. Lynch
Chapter 7 Ethnicity and Greek Art History in Theory and Practice	143
S. Rebecca Martin

Chapter 8	Material(ity) Girl: Examining Images of Aphrodite on the Bullae from Tel Kedesh	164
	Lisa Ayla Çakmak

Part 3. Civic and Religious Landscapes

Chapter 9	Coordination Problems, Social Architecture, and Causal Efficacy: The Case of the Old Bouleuterion in the Athenian Agora	189
	Jessica Paga
Chapter 10	Mapping the Religious Landscape: The Case of Pan in Athens	212
	Michael Scott
Chapter 11	The “Spatial Turn” in Ancient Greek Festival Research: Venues of the Athenian City Dionysia and the Great Panathenaia	230
	Pompai Soi Agelidis

Part 4. Funerary Landscapes

Chapter 12	Funerary Spatial Concepts and Spatial Practices in Southeastern Sicily during the Eighth to Fifth Centuries BCE	249
	Kerstin P. Hofmann and Regina Attula
Chapter 13	The Tomb Doth Protest Too Much? Constructed Identity in Tomb II at Vergina	273
	Elina Salminen

Part 5. Responses

Chapter 14	Theory and Method in Greek Archaeology: Some Opportunities and Challenges	297
	Lin Foxhall
Chapter 15	Does “Greek Archaeology” Matter?	301
	Zosia Archibald
	Contributors	307
	Index	311