

Contents

Editors' Preface	5
Author's Preface	7
 Aesthetic Experience and the Collective Life: An Introduction	 11
 I. Turning Outward/Turning Inward: Late Howells and Late James
“Helping my people know themselves”: Novels of William Dean Howells from the Turn of the Century	31
The Reign of Consciousness: Henry James's Late Phase	51
 II. American Modernism: Its Visions and Its Continuities
Making It New: Histories and Definitions	69
Imaginariness of American Modernism	87
Transcendentalists and Cultural Nationalists: Painters & Poets of the Stieglitz Circle	105
Hart Crane's Columbus: The Poet's Voyage in Search of the Incarnate Word	123
Pound's Cantos as Challenge and Provocation	137
“A clean wind through the chaff of truth”: William Carlos Williams as Critic	163
Verbal Abstraction and the Democratic Promise of Natural Speech: From Williams and Creeley to the Language Poets	179
“Historical imagination gathers in the missing”: History, Memory and Strategies of Commemoration in the Poetry of Susan Howe	205

III. Versions of Contemporary American Fiction

Manners and the Contemporary Novel	221
History, Utopia and Transcendence in the Space-Time of Pynchon's Against the Day	247
Constructing the Self – Inventing the Other: Race in Novels of the Post-Sixties	271
Finding Voice in Fragmentation: Negotiations of (Female) Identity in North American Migrant Texts	291
“A-synchronous messaging”: The Fictional World of Richard Powers	307

IV. American Studies and the Place of the Aesthetic

Conformism and Non-Conformity as Categories of Literary Criticism	329
American Studies in an Age of Globalization	345
Toward a Pluralist Aesthetics	361
Works Cited	375
Reprint Notices	401