

Contents

Acknowledgements	xi
1. Introduction	1
1. My Background and Reasons for Writing this Book	1
2. Work Psychology and Other Labels	4
3. The Status of Knowledge	6
4. Power, Knowledge, Practice	8
5. The Book's Contents	11
PART ONE FACTORY HANDS
2. Scientific Management and the Task Idea: Precursors of Industrial Psychology	13
1. Introduction	13
2. The Task Idea	14
3. Conditions for the Emergence of Management	16
4. Supervision	19
5. Claims about Scientific Management	21
6. Science, Management and Industrial Relations	27
7. Scientific Management and the Individual	30
8. Scientific Management and Self-Regulation	31
3. Human Factors	34
1. Introduction	34
2. Fatigue	35
3. Welfare Work	37
4. Welfare, Efficiency and Seebohm Rowntree	38
5. The National Institute of Industrial Psychology	40
6. Industrial Psychology at Rowntree's	42
The Psychologist and Efficiency
Time and Motion Study
Selection

Labour Research
Industrial Psychology by Another Name
7. Conclusions	50
4. Fitting the Worker to the Job: The Use of Psychometric Tests for Selection	54
1. Introduction	54
2. Wartime Selection	55
3. Individual Differences in Mind	57
4. Conditions of Emergence for the New Psychology	58
5. Mental Measurement: 'A Plan for Every Man'	61
6. Vocational Guidance	63

PART TWO THE SENTIMENTAL WORKER

5. Hawthorne and the Emergence of Human Relations	68
1. Introduction	68
2. The Hawthorne Research	69
3. The Sentimental Worker	71
4. From Scientific Management to Human Relations	73
5. Defining the Problem and the Object of Change	76
6. The Interviewing Method	79
7. Personal Equilibrium and Productivity	82
8. Method and the Production of a New Subject Worker	84
6. Motivating Employees: Human Relations Training and Job Satisfaction	88
1. Introduction	88
2. Attitude Surveys	90
3. Interpersonal Skills Training	91
4. Imposing the Choice of Change	93
5. The High Cost of the Monotonous Job	96
6. Approaches to Job Satisfaction	97
Job Design with a Human Relations Face
Two Factors in Motivating Workers
7. The Problem of the Repetitive Job	99
The Conditions of Implementation
8. Herzberg and Human Relations	102
Looking for the Key to Job Attitudes
How You Install a Generator in an Employee
Herzberg's Individualism
9. The Legacy of Motivation Theory	105

7. Organizational Change and Development	108
1. Introduction	108
2. Organizational Behaviour	109
3. Organization Development	111
4. Private and Public Sector Interventions	113
5. Esso Petroleum and Organizational Change	115
The Michigan Institute of Social Research
Participation and Democracy
Leadership Style
The Tavistock Institute of Human Relations
Differences within Social Science at Esso Petroleum
Power and Access
6. Shell and the Tavistock Intervention	124
The Background to Shell's Intervention
Motivation, Participation and Attitude Change
The Role of the Tavistock at Shell
The Statement of Philosophy
Outcomes
The Implications of the Shell Case
8. Organizational Culture	135
1. Introduction	135
2. Child of Human Relations	137
3. Leadership and Culture	140
4. An Overview	144
5. 'Ma Bell Doesn't Live Here Any More'	146
6. The Methods of Culture Change	147
9. The Future of Work Psychology and Organizational Behaviour	152
1. Introduction	152
2. UK Work Psychology in 1990	155
The Future according to the BPS
The Boundary around Work Psychology
3. Changes in the Character of Work	162
New Technology and the Regulation of Work
Internalized Commitment
The Employment Organization and the Contractual Organization
Core and Peripheral Workers
4. Back to Worker Protection?	171
Equal Opportunities
Sick Building Syndrome (SBS) and Stress

x Work psychology and organizational behaviour

5. A World Perspective 179
 Universal Management Practice?
6. Chances for Improvement? 183
7. Work Psychology and the Production of
 Worker Subjectivity 186

References 191

Index 201