

Contents

PREFACE VII

INTRODUCTION IX

I.

LITERATURE, CULTURE AND TRADITION

Western Tradition and World Concern	2
The Meaning of Abstraction in Literature	10
Literary Method and Author-Attitude	21
Some Problems of Interpretation: Silence, and Speech as Action	33
On a Poem of Catullus	47
Wordsworth's Poems	51
Reflections on Literature as a Minor Art	56

II.

DRAMATIC ART AND THEATRE

The Drama of Awareness	62
Notes on a Remark of Seami	69
Occasional Poetry	76
The Chance for Popular Culture	79
The Shape of the Screen and the Darkness of the Theatre	88

Censorship and Pornography on the Stage	100
Obsessed by Theatre	111
New Theatre and the Unions	116
A New Deal for the Arts	123
Art of the Theatre	132

III.

MODERN LITERATURE

Advance-Guard Writing in America:
1900-1950	144
Good Interim Writing: 1954	165
Underground Writing: 1960	169
"The Crime of Our Century"	180
Kerouac's On the Road	191
The Sweet Style of Ernest Hemingway	196
Preface to Kafka's Metamorphosis	205
The Real Dream	208
Between the Flash and the Thunderstroke	213
The Abundance	218

IV.

SELF CRITICISM

A Decade of Writing Projects	226
Preface to The Grand Piano	237
Preface to a Collection of Stories Never
Published	241
Preface to The Break-Up of Our Camp	246
Preface to The Fire (i. e. Parents' Day)	249
Preface to Our Visit to Niagara	251
An Interview on The Empire City	253
An Apology for Literature	267