

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
List of Contributors	ix
About the Editor-in-Chief	xi
About the Editors	xiii
Introduction	xv
Section 1: The Growth Experiences of China and India	1
1. The 1991 Reforms, Indian Economic Growth, and Social Progress Manmohan Agarwal and John Whalley	3
2. China's Post-1978 Growth Process and Earlier Growth Processes in Europe, US, Japan, and Korea Hejing Chen and John Whalley	23
3. China and India: Reforms and the Response — How Differently have the Economies Behaved? Manmohan Agarwal and John Whalley	51
Section 2: India and China in the Global Economy	69
4. The Contingent Reserve Arrangement and the International Monetary System Manmohan Agarwal and John Whalley	71

5.	Financial Crisis of 2008 and Shifting Economic Power: Is there Convergence? Manmohan Agarwal and Sayan Samanta	85
6.	South–South Economic Cooperation, STECO and the Financial Crisis Manmohan Agarwal and John Whalley	107
7.	The Contribution of China, India, and Brazil to Narrowing North–South Differences in GDP/capita, World Trade Shares, and Market Capitalization Dana Medianu, Jing Wang and John Whalley	129
8.	China’s Rapidly Deepening Economic Relationship with India John Whalley	155
	Section 3: Other Dimensions of Growth in China and India	169
9.	Innovation and Technology Transfer Policies in China, India, and Brazil Manmohan Agarwal, Yao Amber Li and John Whalley	171
10.	The Effect of US Monetary Policy on G20 Emerging Countries Manmohan Agarwal and Badye Essid	203
	Index	217